

II. Cleansing and Securing the Area of Operations.

1) Instigation of self-cleansing actions.

Considering that the population of the Baltic countries had suffered very heavily under the Government of Bolshevism and Jewry while they were incorporated in the USSR, it was to be expected that after the liberation from that foreign government, they (i.e. the population themselves) would render harmless most of the enemies left behind after the retreat of the Red Army. It was the duty of the Security Police to set in motion these self-cleansing movements and to direct them into the correct channels in order to accomplish the purpose of the cleansing operations as quickly as possible. It was no less important in view of the future to establish the unshakable and provable fact that the liberated population themselves took the most severe measures against the Bolshevik and Jewish enemy quite on their own, so that the direction by German authorities could not be found out.

In Lithuania this was achieved for the first time by partisan activities in Kowno. To our surprise it was not easy at first to set in motion an extensive pogrom against Jews. KLEMTIS, the leader of the partisan unit, mentioned above, who was used for this purpose primarily, succeeded in starting a pogrom on the basis of advice given to him by a small advanced detachment acting in Kowno, and

A masterful framing chapter sets the direction and tone of each section's themes. Comprising over thirty essays, this important addition to Holocaust studies offers a remarkable compendium of systematic comparative and precise analyses. Covers areas and topics not included in any other companion of its type. Examines the ongoing cultural, social, and political legacies of the Holocaust. Genocide and Gender in the Twentieth Century Amy E. Randall, 2021-12-16. Focusing on events in Rwanda, Armenia, and the former Yugoslavia, as well as the Holocaust, Genocide and Gender in the Twentieth Century investigates how historically and culturally specific ideas led to genocidal sexual violence. Expert contributors also consider how these ideas, in conjunction with issues relating to femininity, masculinity, and understandings of gendered identities, contributed to perpetrators' tools and strategies for ethnic cleansing and genocide. The 2nd edition features five brand new chapters which explore imperialism, race, gender, and genocide; the Cambodian genocide; memory and intergenerational transmission of Holocaust trauma; and genocide, gender, and memory in the Armenian case. An extended and enhanced introduction, which makes use of recent scholarship on gender and violence, historiographical and bibliographical updates throughout, and key primary document excerpt from the 1948 UN Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of Genocide. Updated and revised in its second edition, Genocide and Gender in the Twentieth Century is the authoritative study on the complex gender dimensions of ethnic cleansing and genocide in the 20th century.

Exploring Cultural Dynamics and Tensions Within Service-Learning Trae Stewart, Nicole Webster, 2011-09-01. Service learning is an exciting pedagogy and field of study offering insight into how academic study and community engagement blend to create social change. In its most traditional conceptualization, service-learning activities typically manifest within communities where outside individuals address a need. Service learning is purported to have a transforming effect on individual student perspectives by providing students the opportunity to interact with people and enter into situations that allow students to test their predisposition towards others. However, the literature on the impact of service learning on participants' acceptance of diversity and development of open-mindedness reports mixed outcomes. The purpose of this book is to explore cultural tensions and dynamics within the field of service learning. It is not meant to be an exhaustive review of the interplay between culture and service learning but rather a starting point for an ongoing conversation about how this complex topic impacts the field In 18 chapters educators students and administrators investigate the cultural values of service learning itself and the tensions created when this is at odds with the values of others within K 12 and higher education in the United States and abroad Authors include community organization representatives researchers directors of offices of community engagement university administrators junior and senior faculty and former service learning undergraduate students Submissions reflect a range of genres including theoretical conceptual pieces position papers case studies and other traditional academic essays challenging how students and community members are affected by the cultural tensions within service learning engagement
