person has asked themselves at least once since their youth elementary things about existentialism Questions such as who am I What do I do here What should I do with my life Or what will happen after this life This is so important for our being that many do not hesitate to consult fortune tellers so that even to a certain degree they could calm that intrigue What we call death is part of these big questions Unfortunately for most this is the big question that at least officially or popularly lacks further answers The majority of the population may not want to think about this since an uncomfortable and even terrible fear restlessness and uncertainty invade their being However there is no shortage of seeing dead people in action or drama films and in one way or another the gore horror and crime drama genres are quite seductive for many We are aware that within us there is something that intrigues us about the Beyond a mix of intrigue respect fear and deep curiosity We all want to believe in one way or another that there is something beyond this life We all want to last to be long lived young immortal eternal When we are faced with the possibility of death that is where our inner being unequivocally says with complete honesty Father why have you forsaken me This phrase from Yeshua Jesus of Nazareth does not focus on him and his moment of alleged agony on the cross but on an unquestionable truth about how man is forced to bow before the emotional and psychological abyss that represents the complete feeling of vulnerability uncertainty fear panic loneliness and abandonment that represent the doors of the Beyond What would be the point of living for a while and then ceasing to exist How can life be a gift if when I have barely managed to enjoy something illness comes then old age and finally death Or how can I have confidence or certainty in something if you don't know if illness disability or death will visit you tomorrow What if you could know what lies beyond the threshold of death Would you be willing to believe in the possibility that your being will continue to exist once it leaves the bodily vehicle What if the body is just a dress for something else that can move through other dimensions and be reborn a thousand and thousands of times until eternity What if our destiny is to become superior beings who transcend death and become gods If you are willing to give rise to this possibility this work will surely interest you
