

ENDOCRINE SYSTEM

Endocrine System: WORKING TOGETHER

Each organ system works on other systems within the body to do its "job". See below to learn just some of the ways that the endocrine system interacts with other organ systems.

Nervous System

Circulatory System

Endocrine System: FACTS

Endocrine System: PROBLEMS

Most of the time, the endocrine system works perfectly well. However, sometimes problems can arise.

Diabetes

Diabetes is a condition that causes high blood glucose (sugar) levels. It is caused by the body being unable to either produce or use the hormone insulin. So, the glucose (sugar) gets stuck in the blood. Symptoms include increased thirst, weight loss, frequent urination, blurred vision, slow wound healing, and frequent weight changes, persistent acne, rashes, or itching in the hands.

Endocrine System: KEY TERMS

Term	Definition
Endocrine System	Network of endocrine glands that make, store, and release hormones.
Hormones	Chemical messengers that carry information and instructions from one cell to another.

Endocrine System: HORMONES

Hormones are chemical signals. Hormones are released by a gland into the bloodstream. They travel through the bloodstream and bind to that specific target cell. The target cell then reacts to the hormone and releases a signal. This signal then travels through the bloodstream to the target cell.

Endocrine System: FIGHT-OR-FLIGHT

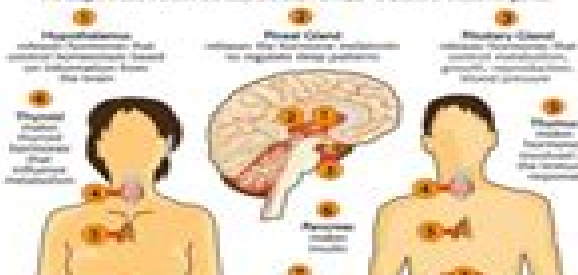

The fight-or-flight response is a reaction that occurs in the body when we are really frightened. The fight-or-flight response prepares the body to either fight or flee. When we are really frightened, our body releases hormones that prepare the body to either fight or flee. These hormones include adrenaline, which increases heart rate and blood pressure, and cortisol, which increases blood sugar levels.

So, when we are really frightened, our body releases hormones that prepare the body to either fight or flee. These hormones include adrenaline, which increases heart rate and blood pressure, and cortisol, which increases blood sugar levels.

Endocrine System: GLANDS

A gland is a structure that produces and releases substances that perform a specific function in the body. There are two types of glands: endocrine glands and exocrine glands. Endocrine glands release hormones into the bloodstream, while exocrine glands release substances into a duct or onto the surface of the body.

Endocrine System: FEEDBACK LOOPS

Endocrine activities are regulated by complex feedback loops. These feedback loops help the body maintain a stable internal environment. When a hormone level is too high or too low, the body releases a signal to either increase or decrease the hormone level. This signal then travels through the bloodstream to the target cell, which then releases a signal to either increase or decrease the hormone level.

For example, if blood sugar levels are too low, the pancreas releases insulin. Insulin then travels through the bloodstream to the target cells, which then release a signal to either increase or decrease the blood sugar level.

So, the body maintains a stable internal environment by using feedback loops. These feedback loops help the body maintain a stable internal environment by using feedback loops.
