

INDIVIDU ET TECHNOLOGIE

Cet ouvrage est signé par deux auteurs : un philosophe qui depuis longtemps aborde les questions de son époque ; un scientifique qui côtoie depuis de nombreuses années les nouveautés techniques les plus diverses.

Les deux hommes se connaissent depuis plus de trente ans et leur rencontre est marquée par un respect mutuel des travaux de l'autre. Chacun a son type de réflexion propre et le dit à sa façon. On ne cherchera donc pas dans ces pages l'équivalent d'un livre d'entretiens.

L'objet de leur recherche n'est autre que l'individu d'aujourd'hui. Celui-ci, placé dans un monde à haute densité technologique, peut et doit être pensé, tant sur le plan scientifique que philosophique. Prenant la parole à tour de rôle, ils abordent aux temps passé, présent et futur, la relation entre l'homme et l'artefact, en la situant dans la perspective de la réflexion actuelle sur l'écologie.
