Haas, 2004-08-19 This handbook is designed to provide authoritative information to the psychologist working in primary care settings and to those seeking to learn about clinical issues in such settings. Scholarly and at the same time practical, this volume offers both the clinician and the researcher a wide ranging look at the contexts in which psychological services become of paramount importance to the health of the patient. The handbook will cover the prevalent psychological conditions in the primary care setting: depression, anxiety, somatization, eating disorders, and alcoholism. Illnesses in which psychological disorders play a major role, such as heart disease, diabetes, cancer, pain management, headache, asthma, low back pain, sleep disorders, among others, and issues of concern to psychologists treating children (ADHD, disciplinary problems, etc.), treating women (abuse, infertility, menopause, sexual dysfunction), treating men (workaholic, alcoholism, sexual dysfunction), and treating the older patient (death and dying, cognitive impairment, late life depression). Other important topics include psychological side effects of common medications, resistance to treatment, spiritual concerns in the treatment of patients, cultural differences in healing, suicide, AIDS, prevention of disease, and many others. Leonard Haas is a noted authority in the area of primary care psychology and has recruited expert contributors for the 41 chapters and two appendices that make up this definitive handbook for a growing and important subspecialty in clinical psychology. The work may also be used in graduate courses in health psychology.

Critical Disability Theory Dianne Pothier, Richard Devlin, 2011-11-01. People with disabilities in Canada inhabit a system of deep structural economic, social, political, legal, and cultural inequality, a regime of dis-citizenship. Despite the widespread belief that Canada is a country of liberty, equality, and inclusiveness, many persons with disabilities experience social exclusion and marginalization. They are socially constructed as second class citizens. Conventional understandings of disability are dependent on assumptions that characterize disability as misfortune and by implication privilege the normal over the abnormal Consequently it is presumed that societal organization based upon able bodied and minded norms is inevitable and that the best we can do is show sympathy or pity The essays Critical Disability Theory contend instead that achieving equality for the disabled is not fundamentally a question of medicine or health nor is it an issue of sensitivity or compassion Rather it is a question of politics and of power and powerlessness This book argues that we need new ways to think about the nature of disability a new understanding of participatory citizenship that encompasses the disabled new policies to respond to their needs and a new vision of their entitlements Twenty four scholars from a variety of disciplines come together here to identify the problems with traditional approaches to disability and to provide new directions The essays range from focused empirical and experiential studies of different disabilities to policy analyses legal interrogations and philosophical reconsiderations The result will be of interest to policy makers professionals academics non governmental organizations and grassroots activists
