By David Greene and Tom Ichniowski, authors of How to Grow a Startup, a new business plan book from the Harvard Business School Press. "It's about the business plan, but it's not the business plan," Ichniowski says. "It's about the process of creating a business plan, and the process of creating a business plan is the business plan." The book is a guide to the process of creating a business plan, and it's a guide to the process of creating a business plan. The book is a guide to the process of creating a business plan, and it's a guide to the process of creating a business plan.

► DISCUSSION In this paper, we have presented a novel approach to the problem of learning to rank. We have shown that by using a simple linear model, we can learn to rank documents in a way that is both efficient and effective. The results of our experiments suggest that this approach is a promising direction for future research in the area of learning to rank.

Field Observations

The Maya people still exist today and have survived numerous attempts to wipe them out over the course of their history. This unit refers mainly to the classical Maya period, which stretches from approx. 250-950 AD. During this time society became more organised around urban areas and society became more organised. Advances were made in astronomy, maths and language, as well as architecture and agriculture. Links were made with other peoples across the continent. Scholars disagree over why the classical period came to an end, although it has been hypothesised that it was caused by a widespread drought, which ended the growth of society and impoverished the population.

Life in a Maya Settlement

Maya settlements appear to not have been planned, but a general centre point was the temple. It is thought that the stepped temples were built both as a statement of grandeur and as a route to the heavens above. This is something the Mayas have in common with many other civilisations across the ancient world. Rumours of human sacrifice have seeped into popular culture, but appear to be overblown. Each settlement also had wide-open plazas which served as a meeting point, as well as a ball court where games were held. Cities were generally not organised in an identical way, but had lots of common features. There does not appear to have been a central point of authority in the Maya empire, rather society was organised through a number of rulers at local level. This is perhaps the reason the Mayans endured, without a central powerbase that could be decapitated, agreements had to be made with a number of rulers, in a way this is similar to the Indian, or even European, city-states.
