Soncini-Sessa,2006-10-19 The Integrated Water Resources Management IWRM paradigm has been worldwide recognized as the only feasible way currently available to ensure a sustainable perspective in planning and managing water resource systems It is the inspiring principle of the Water Framework Directive adopted by the European Union in 2000 as well as the main reference for all the water related activity of UNESCO in the third world countries However very often real world attempts of implementing IWRM fail for the lack of a systematic approach and the inadequacy of tools and techniques adopted to address the intrinsically complex nature of water systems This book explores recent and important contributions of System Analysis and Control Theory to the technical application of such paradigm and to the improvement of its theoretical basis Its prior aim is to demonstrate how the modelling and computational difficulties posed by this paradigm might be significantly reduced by strengthening the efficiency of the solution techniques instead of weakening the integration requirements The first introductory chapter provides the reader with a logical map of the book by formalizing the IWRM paradigm in a nine step decisional procedure and by identifying the points where the contribution of System Analysis and Control Theory is more useful The book is then organized in three sections whose chapters analyze some theoretical and mathematical aspects of these contributions or presents design applications The outstanding research issues on the border between System Analysis and IWRM is depicted in the last chapter where a pull of scientists and experts coordinated by Prof Tony Jakeman describe the foreseeable scenario The book is based on the most outstanding contributions to the IFAC workshop on Modelling and Control for Participatory Planning and Managing Water Systems held in Venice September 28 October 1 2004 That workshop has been conceived and organized with the explicit purpose of producing this book the maximum length of the papers was unusually long of the size of a book chapter and only five long oral presentations were planned each day thus allowing for a very useful and constructive discussion Contributions from the leading world specialists of the field Integration of technical modelling aspects and participatory decision making Good compromise between theory and application      Environment in Key Words Isaac Paenson,2016-06-28 Environmental problems ignore international boundaries Toxic wastes travel by water and air sometimes displacing the effects of an environmental disaster entirely outside of its country of origin It is now understood that to overcome the problems that face us international co operation is required This important work is designed to assist in that process by helping to break down the language barriers that stand between countries The manual written in parallel English German French and Russian texts provides the basic tools of communication in the specialized fields of environmental sciences between speakers of these languages Each chapter has been revised in each separate language by specialists in the field to guarantee the authenticity of the information presented. The author is unique in his approach presenting the key words in context as opposed to simple glossary entries allowing the reader to fully understand the complex relations between the word and the concepts involved. A comprehensive index written in all four languages guides the reader through the text providing references to the words as they are used in different disciplines.

Empirical Foundations of Information and Software Science Jagdish C. Agrawal, 2012-12-06 The purpose of the Second Symposium on Empirical Foundations of Information and Software Science (EFISS) was in essence the same as that of the First Symposium in this series: i.e. to explore subjects and methods of scientific inquiry which are of fundamental and common interest to information and software sciences and to map directions of research that will benefit from the mutual interaction of these two fields. In fact, one of the most important results of the First EFISS Symposium was the conclusion that the commonality of these two sciences is much more than just the commonality of their objects of study: namely the study of informative and prescriptive properties of texts in all kinds of sign systems such as natural or artificial languages. Rather, the most challenging problems appear to be in the areas in which both these sciences overlap such as, for instance, the problem of trade offs between informative and prescriptive uses of texts. This problem can be formulated in generic terms as follows: given a certain kind of action or activity which has been prescribed to some agent, i.e. which is required to be implemented or carried out, what kind of information should be provided to the agent, in what form and how should it be distributed over the contextual structure of the prescriptive text to enable the agent to carry out the action or activity most effectively and efficiently.

Leinfellner, Eckehart Köhler, 2012-12-06 Philosophy of Science deals with the problem What is science It seems that the answer to this question can only be found if we have an answer to the question How does science function Thus the study of the methodology of social sciences is a prominent factor in any analysis of these sciences The history of philosophy shows clearly that the answer to the question How does science function was the conditio sine qua non of any kind of philosophy of science epistemology and even of logic Aristotle Hume Kant Mill Russell to mention a few classical authors clearly emphasized the primacy of methodology of science for any kind of philosophy of science One may even state that analyses of the presuppositions the foundations the aims goals and purposes of science are nothing else than analyses of their general and specific formal as well as practical and empirical methods Thus the whole program of any philosophy of science is dependent on the analysis of the methods of sciences and the establishment of their criteria If the study of scientific method is the predominant factor in the philosophy of science then all the other problems will depend on the outcome of such a study For example the old question of a possible unity of all social sciences will be brought to a solution by the study of the presuppositions the methods as well as of the criteria germane to all social sciences
