Rights of Farmers in Neoliberal India Sophy K. Joseph, 2020-02-14 The Protection of Plant Varieties and Farmer's Rights Act 2001 promises to balance the intellectual property rights of plant breeders and farmers under one umbrella legislation However there remain several grey areas and the rights of farmers in reality are still tenuous Though the rights framework was foregrounded on an understanding between non governmental organizations and industry there is lack of clarity at both conceptual and procedural levels In this context Sophy K Joseph analyses the impact of legal policy reforms during the ongoing Second Green Revolution on farmers customary rights and livelihood The author discusses how the extension of private property rights to plant varieties seeds and other agrarian resources changed the demographic composition of the rural space with increased migration of cultivators to the cities The book argues that the transition from state interventionism during the First Green Revolution to state abstention in the Second Green Revolution has dramatically influenced India's conventional agrarian practices and traditions This work maps the evolutionary process of neoliberal economic and legal policies and its interference with primary concerns such as food security food sovereignty and agrarian self reliance of the country Intellectual Property and Traditional Knowledge in the Global Economy Teshager W. Dagne, 2014-09-04 Arising from recent developments at the international level many developing countries indigenous peoples and local communities are considering using geographical indications GIs to protect traditional knowledge and to promote trade and overall economic development Despite the considerable enthusiasm over GIs in diverse quarters there is an appreciable lack of research on how far and in what context GIs can be used as a protection model for traditional knowledge based resources This book critically examines the potential uses of geographical indications as models for protecting traditional knowledge based products and resources in national and international intellectual property legal frameworks By analysing the reception towards GIs from developing countries and advocates of development in the various legal and non legal regimes including the World Trade Organization World Intellectual Property Organization and the Convention on Biological Diversity and the Food and Agricultural Organization the book evaluates the development potential of GIs in relation to ensuing changes in international intellectual property law in accommodating traditional knowledge Teshager W Dagne argues for a degree of balance in the approach to the implementation of global intellectual property rights in a manner that gives developing countries an opportunity to protect traditional knowledge based products The book will be of great interest and use to scholars and students of intellectual property law public international law traditional knowledge and
