Students with Disabilities and the Transition to Work Oliver Mutanga, 2019-07-01 This book sets out to understand how students with disabilities experience higher education and the transition to the workplace It foregrounds the voices of students and graduates in order to explore identity inclusion participation and success of youth with disabilities in higher education as well as their transition from university to employment The author proposes a new understanding of disability considered in terms of a continuum of abilities balancing empirical data theory and policy analysis with specific regard to the interests of youth with disabilities making a unique contribution to discussions on access inclusion and success in higher education and employment These discussions inform social development and educational policy planning and implementation not only in South Africa but also in countries with a similar context particularly in terms of remedial courses of action that bring social justice to people with disabilities Students with Disabilities and the Transition to Work will be of interest to all scholars and students working in the fields of disability studies particularly those with a focus on critical disability studies and disability in the global south as well as those working in higher education sociology development studies and social policy

Universities, Employability and Human Development Melanie Walker, Samuel Fongwa, 2017-01-20 The book makes a significant contribution to critical higher education studies specifically to graduate employability research and to capabilities and education research The book moves beyond the simplistic conception of alleged gaps in graduate skills and mismatches between employers and universities and instead provides an innovative multi dimensional and intersectional human capabilities conceptualisation of graduate employability The book challenges an individualised notion of employability instead locating employability issues in social and economic conditions and argues that employability choices cannot be divorced from inequality Qualitative and quantitative data from multiple case study universities in South Africa are used to explore the perceptions and experiences of diverse students lecturers support officers and employers regarding what each university is doing or should be doing to enhance graduate economic opportunities and contribute to inclusive development The book will be highly relevant to students scholars and researchers in the fields of education and sociology particularly those with an interest in graduate employability

Higher Education Pathways Paul Ashwin, M. Case, 2018-12-13 In what ways does access to undergraduate education have a transformative impact on people and societies What conditions are required for this impact to occur What are the pathways from an undergraduate education to the public good including inclusive economic development These questions have particular resonance in the South African higher education context which is attempting to tackle the challenges of widening access and improving completion rates in a system in which the segregations of the apartheid years are still apparent Higher education is recognised in core legislation as having a distinctive and crucial role in building post apartheid society Undergraduate education is seen as central to addressing skills shortages in South Africa It is also seen to yield significant social returns including a consistent positive impact on societal institutions and the development of a range of capabilities that have public as well as private benefits This book offers comprehensive contemporary evidence that allows for a fresh engagement with these pressing issues

Research, Records and Responsibility Amanda Harris, Nick Thieberger, Linda Barwick, 2015-10-02 The Pacific and Regional Archive for Digital Sources in Endangered Cultures PARADISEC has been on the cutting edge of digital archiving building a significant historical collection and community of practice engaged in the preservation and accessibility of research materials Over the ten years of PARADISEC's operation the repository has grown to represent over 860 languages from across the world including cultural materials from the Pacific region and South East Asia North America Africa and Europe With over 5000 hours of audio the extent of the archival material as well as the inclusion of a variety of styles such as songs narratives and elicitation has resulted in an invaluable resource for researchers and communities alike PARADISEC's innovation in archival practice allows communities to access original recordings of their own cultural heritage and provides fieldworkers with a wealth of primary material Research Records and Responsibility explores developments in collaborative archiving practice between archives and the communities they serve and represent incorporating case studies of historical recordings visual data and material culture It brings together the work of Australian and international scholars commemorating ten years of PARADISEC and reflects on the development of research and language archiving

Being and Becoming Indigenous Archaeologists George Nicholas, 2016-06-16 What does being an archaeologist mean to Indigenous persons How and why do some become archaeologists What has led them down a path to what some in their communities have labeled a colonialist venture What were the challenges they have faced and the motivations that have allowed them to succeed How have they managed to balance traditional values and worldview with Western modes of inquiry And how are their contributions broadening the scope of archaeology Indigenous archaeologists have the often awkward role of trying to serve as spokespeople both for their home community and for the scientific community of archaeologists This volume tells the stories in their own words of 37 indigenous archaeologists from six continents how they became archaeologists and how their dual role affects their relationships with their community and their professional colleagues Sponsored by the World Archaeological Congress
