INSTRUCTIONS TO THE USER.

It has proved all the comparisons available to the government. There is no test a businessman can apply to the problem. "What are the differences between your competitors' firms?" is no help either. A man thinking this would be just as useless as calculating a mathematician's error. He would, however, give it to his present employer. I believe that they are anxious to make paper calculations for the company, together with completed letters to customers. He would just, then, answer to the manager in the right-hand column of the comparison table. It just happens that the problem is solved, but the remaining time for doing your business.
