The Oxford History of Classical Reception in English Literature David Hopkins, Charles Martindale, Norman Vance, Rita Copeland, Patrick Cheney, Jennifer Wallace, Philip R. Hardie, 2012 The Oxford History of Classical Reception OHCREL is designed to offer a comprehensive investigation of the numerous and diverse ways in which literary texts of the classical world have stimulated responses and refashioning by English writers Covering the full range of English literature from the early Middle Ages to the present day OHCREL both synthesizes existing scholarship and presents cutting edge new research employing an international team of expert contributors for each of the five volumes OHCREL endeavours to interrogate rather than inertly reiterate conventional assumptions about literary periods the processes of canon formation and the relations between literary and non literary discourse It conceives of reception as a complex process of dialogic exchange and rather than offering large cultural generalizations it engages in close critical analysis of literary texts It explores in detail the ways in which English writers engagement with classical literature casts as much light on the classical originals as it does on the English writers own cultural context This fourth volume and second to appear in the series covers the years 1790 1880 and explores romantic and Victorian receptions of the classics Noting the changing fortunes of particular classical authors and the influence of developments in archaeology aesthetics and education it traces the interplay between classical and nineteenth century perceptions of gender class religion and the politics of republic and empire in chapters engaging with many of the major writers of this period

The Language of Heresy in Late Medieval English Literature Erin K.

Wagner, 2024-04-22 Vernacular writers of late medieval England were engaged in global conversations about orthodoxy and heresy. Entering these conversations with a developing vernacular required lexical innovation. The Language of Heresy in Late Medieval English Literature examines the way in which these writers complemented seemingly straightforward terms like heretic with a range of synonyms that complicated the definitions of both those words and orthodoxy itself. This text proposes four specific terms that become collated with heretic in the parlance of medieval English writers of the 14th and 15th centuries: jangler, Jew, Saracen, and witch. These four labels are especially important insofar as they represent the way in which medieval Christianity appropriated and subverted marginalized or vulnerable identities to promote a false image of unassailable authority. Academy, with which are Incorporated Literature and the English Review, 1895 Irish Identities

Raymond Hickey, Carolina P. Amador-Moreno, 2020-01-20 This volume examines in depth the many facets of language and identity in the complex linguistic landscape of Ireland. The role of the heritage language Irish is scrutinized as are the manifold varieties of English spoken in regions of the island determined by both geography and social contexts. Language as a vehicle of national and cultural identity is center stage as is the representation of identity in various media types and text genres. In addition, the volume examines the self-image of the Irish as reflected in various self-portrayals and references, e.g., in humorous texts. Identity as an aspect of both public and private life in contemporary Ireland and its role in the gender interface is examined closely in several chapters. This collection is aimed at both scholars and students interested in language and identity in the multi-layered situation of Ireland both historically and at present. By addressing general issues surrounding the dynamic and vibrant research area of identity, it reaches out to readers beyond Ireland who are concerned with the pivotal role this factor plays in present-day societies. The English Catalogue of Books [annual] Sampson
