The sewage treatment plant relies on microorganisms and other plants and animals but differs from a natural ecosystem in the extent of human intervention in its creation and management Schneider explores the relationship between society and nature in the industrial ecosystem and the contradictions that define it the naturalization of industry versus the industrialization of nature the public interest versus private patented technology engineers versus bacterial and human labor and purification versus profits in the marketing of sewage fertilizer Schneider also describes biotechnology s direct connections to the history of sewage treatment and how genetic engineering is extending the reaches of the industrial ecosystem to such natural ecosystems as oceans rivers and forests In a conclusion that shows how industrial ecosystems continue to evolve Schneider discusses John Todd's Living Machine a natural purification method of sewage treatment as the embodiment of the contradictions of the industrial Book Catalog of the Library and Information Services Division: Subject index Environmental Science ecosystem Information Center.
