Signal ,2003 Mobile Response Jobst Löffler, Markus Klann, 2009-02-20 Mobile Response 2008 the Second International Workshop on Mobile Information Technology for Emergency Response aimed at a focussed exchange on how mobile information technology can be effectively used to the benefit of emergency response The gap between the great potential benefit that usable mobile IT could yield in the domain of emergency response and the specific design challenges for such technologies in this particularly unforgiving domain was the foundation of our decision to create a venue for researchers and practitioners from different disciplines. During this year's workshop, the latest approaches and technical solutions in the area of mobile information technology for emergency response planning and execution were presented and demonstrated. We invited participation from research industry and public rescue organizations to enable an in-depth discussion of the opportunities and drawbacks of new digital technologies for emergency response. The call for papers for the second Mobile Response workshop attracted over 25 submissions from 11 different countries including international submissions from the USA, Brazil, and Japan. An international Program Committee with experts on mobile information technology, emergency response, and emergency response equipment selected 12 submissions for presentation during the workshop. The program was completed by two outstanding keynote presentations and one invited presentation on prevailing topics of high interest to the scientific and practitioner communities. Strengthening the Disaster Resilience of the Academic Biomedical Research Community National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Health and Medicine Division, Institute for Laboratory Animal Research, Board on Earth Sciences and Resources, Board on Health Sciences Policy, Committee on Strengthening the Disaster Resilience of Academic Research Communities, 2017-10-20. The academic biomedical research community is a hub of employment, economic productivity, and scientific progress. Academic research institutions are drivers of economic development in their local and state economies and by extension the national economy. Beyond the economic input that the academic biomedical research community both receives and provides, it generates knowledge that in turn affects society in myriad ways. The United States has experienced and continues to face the threat of disasters, and like all entities, the academic biomedical research community can be affected. Recent disasters from hurricanes to cyber attacks and their consequences have shown that the investments of the federal government and of the many other entities that sponsor academic research are not uniformly secure. First and foremost, events that damage biomedical laboratories and the institutions that house them can have impacts on the safety and well-being of humans and research animals. Furthermore, disasters can affect career trajectories, scientific progress, and financial stability at the individual and institutional levels. Strengthening the Disaster Resilience of the Academic Biomedical Research Community offers recommendations and guidance to enhance the disaster resilience of the academic biomedical research community with a special focus on the potential actions researchers, academic research institutions, and research sponsors can take to mitigate the impact of future disasters. Belgium International Monetary Fund.
