

The Financial Detective, 2005

Financial characteristics of companies vary for many reasons. The two most prominent drivers are industry economics and firm strategy.

Each industry has a financial norm around which companies within the industry tend to operate. An airline, for example, would naturally be expected to have a high proportion of fixed assets (airplanes), while a consulting firm would not. A steel manufacturer would be expected to have a lower gross margin than a pharmaceutical manufacturer because commodities such as steel are subject to strong price competition, while highly differentiated products like patented drugs enjoy much more pricing freedom. Because of unique economic features of each industry, average financial statements will vary from one industry to the next.

Similarly, companies within industries have different financial characteristics, in part, because of the diverse strategies that can be employed. Executives choose strategies that will position their company favorably in the competitive jockeying within an industry. Strategies typically entail making important choices in how a product is made (e.g., capital intensive versus labor intensive), how it is marketed (e.g., direct sales versus the use of distributors), and how the company is financed (e.g., the use of debt or equity). Strategies among companies in the same industry can differ dramatically. Different strategies can produce striking differences in financial results for firms in the same industry.

The following paragraphs describe pairs of participants in a number of different industries. Their strategies and market niches provide clues as to the financial condition and performance that one would expect of them. The companies' common-sized financial statements and operating data, as of early 2005, are presented in a standardized format in Exhibit 1. It is up to you to match the financial data with the company descriptions. Also, try to explain the differences in financial results across industries.

This case was prepared by Sean Carr, under the direction of Robert E. Bruner. It was written as a basis for class discussion rather than to illustrate effective or ineffective handling of an administrative situation. Financial Detective 2005 Case Study Answers:

Adopting the Song of Expression: An Mental Symphony within Financial Detective 2005 Case Study Answers

In some sort of eaten by monitors and the ceaseless chatter of instant interaction, the melodic elegance and psychological symphony created by the written term often fade in to the back ground, eclipsed by the persistent sound and disturbances that permeate our lives. But, set within the pages of Financial Detective 2005 Case Study Answers an enchanting literary value full of natural emotions, lies an immersive symphony waiting to be embraced. Crafted by an outstanding musician of language, that captivating masterpiece conducts visitors on an emotional trip, skillfully unraveling the concealed tunes and profound affect resonating within each cautiously constructed phrase. Within the depths with this touching analysis, we will discover the book is key harmonies, analyze their enthralling writing type, and surrender ourselves to the profound resonance that echoes in the depths of readers souls.
