

TABLE 1

Guide to an Overall Critique of a Qualitative Research Project

Aspect of the report	Basic questions for a critique
Title	Was the title a good one, suggesting the key phenomenon and the group or community under study?
Abstract	Does the abstract clearly and concisely summarize the main features of the report?
Introduction
Statement of the problem	Is the problem stated unambiguously, and is it easy to identify? Does the problem statement build a cogent and persuasive argument for the new study? Does the problem have significance in nursing? Is there a good match between the research problem, on the one hand, and the paradigm, traditions, and methods on the other?
Research questions	Are research questions explicitly stated? If not, is their absence justified? Are the questions consistent with the study's philosophical basis, underlying tradition, conceptual framework, or ideological orientation?
Literature review	Does the report adequately summarize the existing body of knowledge related to the problem or phenomenon of interest? Does the literature review provide a solid basis for the new study?
Conceptual underpinnings	Are key concepts defined conceptually? Is the philosophical basis, underlying tradition, conceptual framework, or ideological orientation made explicit, and is it appropriate for the problem?
Method
Protection of participants' rights	Were appropriate procedures used to safeguard the rights of study participants? Was the study subject to external review? Was the study designed to minimize risks and maximize benefits to participants?
Research design and tradition	Is the identified research tradition, if any, congruent with the methods used to collect and analyze data? Was an adequate amount of time spent in the field or with study participants? Did the design unfold in the field, giving researchers opportunities to capitalize on early understandings?
