contrastive descriptions with thorough empirical investigations Authors answer questions on the topic of how we encode complex thoughts into linguistic signals and how we interpret such signals in appropriate ways Chapters combine on and off line empirical methods varying from large scale corpus analyses over acceptability judgements sentence completion studies and reading time experiments The authors shed new light on the central questions related to our everyday use of language especially the problem of how we construe meaning in and through language in general as well as through the means provided by particular languages Catalogue of Copyright Entries Library of Congress.
