Consuming Fictions Gail Turley Houston, 1994 In this remarkable study Gail Turley Houston examines the rich interplay of consumption as alimantal process medical entity psychological construct and economic practice in order to explore Charles Dickens s fictional representations of Victorian culture as he presents it in his novels Drawing from medical historical economic psychoanalytic and biographical materials from the Victorian period Houston anchors her work in the belief that if class and gender are fictional constructions real people s lives are affected in complex and coercive ways by such constructions Proceeding chronologically Houston traces particular patterns throughout ten of Dickens s major novels The Pickwick Papers Oliver Twist The Old Curiosity Shop Martin Chuzzlewit Dombey and Son David Copperfield Bleak House Little Dorrit Great Expectations and Our Mutual Friend Houston maintains that Victorian codes of behavior prescribed for gender and class regarding sexual and alimantal appetites were so extreme and complicated that numerous consequent eating disorders and related diseases developed Ideologies about consumption translated into medically defined consumptions such as anorexia Using anorexia and its etiology as representative of an underlying cultural dynamics of consumption Houston examines anorexia as a deep structure of the Victorian period Further consumption as economic process is reflected in the expansion of individual material desires at the expense of the designated body politic In other words extravagant consumption occurs in society only if certain groups usually consisting of lower class men and women and in Dickens s novels women in general are severely limited in their consumption To support her approach Houston turns to Rita Felski s Beyond Feminist Aesthetics agreeing with Felski s argument that it is necessary to recognize the complex dialectics that take place between the individual and society Not only does culture construct human beings but human beings also construct culture Felski s theory aids Houston in emphasizing that Dickens not only influenced but was also greatly influenced by the Victorian dynamics of consumption In fact Houston argues that while Dickens dismantles Victorian ideologies about class and hunger by demonstrating the unnaturalness of expecting one class to starve so that another might gluttonize he nevertheless accepts and perpetuates the Victorian identification of woman as the self sacrificing always nurturing angel in the house without need of nurture herself This extraordinary book will appeal to literary scholars as well as to scholars in the social sciences history humanistically oriented medicine and women s studies
