Hematome Suspense Crime:

Scènes de crime Thierry Lezeau,2008-04-02 Ma vocation pour la police technique et scientifique est née il y a plus de vingt ans au cours d'une banale intervention sur un cambriolage Parmi les gendarmes de la police scientifique dans cette maison bourgeoise un technicien en identification criminelle procéda à la révélation d'empreintes sur une boîte de gâteaux du Pays de Retz. Intéressé je l'ai observé trouvant extraordinaire que l'on puisse avec un pinceau et une poudre organique faire apparaître des dessins digitaux invisibles. Il nous étonne également que c'était cet aspect de l'enquête qui m'a inspiré le travail de police que je voulais me consacrer. Mon épouse vous dirait que la plupart de mes recherches sont liées à la nourriture que je laisse dire mais cette boîte de gâteaux est bien le point de départ de ma passion pour ce sujet. Depuis une vingtaine d'années donc le lieutenant Lezeau et son équipe traquent le détail d'un indice anodin qui vont lui permettre de remonter le fil d'un dossier criminel qui il s'agit d'un brin de lavande d'abord particulièrement dans un paysage breveté ou d'une pomme provenant d'un verger des bords de la Seine retrouvé sous un cadavre en région parisienne. Ce volume nous propose d'aborder l'histoire de la police technique et scientifique en France travers une quinzaine de récits d'expériences variées où l'on prend la mesure du rôle de la science bien sûr et du progrès scientifique mais également de l'aspect humain de l'instinct et du sens de l'observation.
