

Case Study 3 – School Aged Child with Hemophilia

You are the nurse who accompanies, in the middle of February, a group of 12 girls, aged 6-10, for a weekend of activities at the "Life in the Forest" centre in Gatineau that include: tobogganing, ice skating, hockey, cross-country skiing, hiking and ice fishing. Three of the girls, Janet, 6 years of age, Lucy 6 years of age, and Violet 10 years of age have Hemophilia A. Prior to their arrival your role is to educate the activity leaders regarding their safety and support development of a plan for accommodation. Once they arrive, you are tasked with the management of their care.

Questions

1. How common is hemophilia A and how does it occur? (1 mark)

Hemophilia A is a rare bleeding disorder that occurs in about 1 in every 5,000-10,000 males. Females can also be affected, but it is much rarer. The disorder is caused by a deficiency or dysfunction of clotting factor VIII, a protein that is essential for normal blood clotting. The deficiency of factor VIII is seen in about 80-85% of hemophilia cases.

2. Explain the pathophysiology of hemophilia A to the activity leaders. (2 marks)

Hemophilia A is caused by a deficiency or dysfunction of clotting factor VIII, which is a protein that is necessary for normal blood clotting. When a person with hemophilia A experiences an injury or trauma that causes bleeding, they are unable to form a stable blood clot, which can result in excessive bleeding and potentially life-threatening complications. The severity of the disorder can vary depending on the level of clotting factor VIII present in the blood. People with mild hemophilia may experience only mild bleeding symptoms, while those with severe hemophilia may experience frequent and spontaneous bleeding episodes that can lead to joint damage, chronic pain, and other complications. It is important for activity leaders to be aware of the risk of bleeding and to take appropriate precautions to ensure the safety of individuals with hemophilia A during physical activities. The activity leaders should be aware that a child with hemophilia may bleed for a longer period of time and watch for other complications such as hemarthrosis which is a bleeding into joint spaces like wrists, elbows and ankles which can cause difficulty in range of motion, redness and swelling in the joints.

3. What would you recommend in relation to the planned activities for these girls? Do they need accommodations? Give a rationale for your answers. (3 marks)

In relation to the planned activities, it is important to take precautions to ensure the safety of the girls with hemophilia A. Accommodations such as providing helmets and padding may be necessary for activities such as tobogganing, ice skating, and hockey, to reduce the risk of head injuries and bleeding. It may also be important to have a plan in place for immediate access to clotting factor replacement therapy in case of a bleeding
