Aviation Automation Charles E. Billings,2018-01-29 The advent of very compact very powerful digital computers has made it possible to automate a great many processes that formerly required large complex machinery Digital computers have made possible revolutionary changes in industry commerce and transportation This book an expansion and revision of the author s earlier technical papers on this subject describes the development of automation in aircraft and in the aviation system its likely evolution in the future and the effects that these technologies have had and will have on the human operators and managers of the system It suggests concepts that may be able to enhance human machine relationships in future systems The author focuses on the ability of human operators to work cooperatively with the constellation of machines they command and control because it is the interactions among these system elements that result in the system s success or failure whether in aviation or elsewhere Aviation automation has provided great social and technological benefits but these benefits have not come without cost In recent years new problems in aircraft have emerged due to failures in the human machine relationship These incidents and accidents have motivated this inquiry into aviation automation Similar problems in the air traffic management system are predicted as it becomes more fully automated In particular incidents and accidents have occurred which suggest that the principle problems with today s aviation automation are associated with its complexity coupling autonomy and opacity These problems are not unique to aviation they exist in other highly dynamic domains as well The author suggests that a different approach to automation called human centered automation offers potential benefits for system performance by enabling a more cooperative human machine relationship in the control and management of aircraft and air traffic Plant Manager's Manual and Guide Charles H. Becker,1987 Human-centered Aircraft Automation: A Concept and Guidelines Charles E. Billings,1991 Proceedings ,1994 Human Performance in Automated and Autonomous Systems Mustapha Mouloua,Peter A. Hancock,2019-09-19 This book examines recent advances in theories models and methods relevant to automated and autonomous systems The following chapters provide perspectives on modern autonomous systems such as self driving cars and unmanned aerial systems directly from the professionals working with and studying them Current theories surrounding topics such as vigilance trust and fatigue are examined throughout as predictors of human performance in the operation of automated systems The challenges related to attention and effort in autonomous vehicles described within give credence to still developing methods of training and selecting operators of such unmanned systems The book further recognizes the need for human centered approaches to design a carefully crafted automated technology that places the human user in the center of that design process Features Combines scientific theories with real world applications where automated technologies are implemented Disseminates new understanding as to how automation is now transitioning to autonomy Highlights the role of individual and team characteristics in the piloting of unmanned systems and how models of human performance are applied in system design Discusses methods for selecting and training individuals to succeed in an age of increasingly complex human machine systems Provides explicit benchmark comparisons of progress across the last few decades and identifies future prognostications and the constraints that impinge upon these lines of progress Human Performance in Automated and Autonomous Systems Current Theory and Methods illustrates the modern scientific theories and methods to be applied in real world automated technologies Proceedings, IEEE/AIAA/NASA 9th Digital Avionics Systems Conference, October 15-18, 1990, Virginia Beach, Virginia ,1990 Automation and Human

Performance Raja Parasuraman, Mustapha Mouloua, 2018-01-29 There is perhaps no facet of modern society where the influence of computer automation has not been felt Flight management systems for pilots diagnostic and surgical aids for physicians navigational displays for drivers and decision aiding systems for air traffic controllers represent only a few of the numerous domains in which powerful new automation technologies have been introduced The benefits that have been reaped from this technological revolution have been many At the same time automation has not always worked as planned by designers and many problems have arisen from minor inefficiencies of operation to large scale catastrophic accidents Understanding how humans interact with automation is vital for the successful design of new automated systems that are both safe and efficient The influence of automation technology on human performance has often been investigated in a fragmentary isolated manner with investigators conducting disconnected studies in different domains There has been little contact between these endeavors although principles gleaned from one domain may have implications for another Also with a few exceptions the research has tended to be empirical and only theory driven In recent years however various groups of investigators have begun to examine human performance in automated systems in general and to develop theories of human interaction with automation technology This book presents the current theories and assesses the impact of automation on different aspects of human performance Both basic and applied research is presented to highlight the general principles of human computer interaction in several domains where automation technologies are widely implemented The major premise is that a broad based theory driven approach will have significant implications for the effective design of both current and future automation technologies This volume will be of considerable value to researchers in human Airbus A380 Guy Norris, Mark Wagner, 2005 A revealing behind the scenes look at the development of the biggest commercial aircraft ever built With 200 colour photos this book takes readers through the drama of the A380 project introducing all the key players and unravelling the controversies surrounding its development Human-Centered Aviation Automation: Principles and Guidelines ,1996 Acronyms, Initialisms & Abbreviations Dictionary ,2001-05 Each volume separately titled v 1 Acronyms initialisms v 2 New acronyms initialisms v 3 Reverse acronyms initialisms abbreviations dictionary formerly issued independently as Reverse acronyms and initialisms dictionary Proceedings of the 1990 AIAA/FAA Joint Symposium on
