As a result, the company will continue to provide a high level of service to its customers and to the community. The company is committed to the highest standards of service and to the highest standards of service.

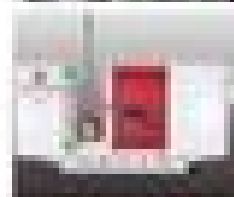

For the higher education community, we have identified a number of challenges that we expect to shape the composition of faculty positions for the next decade. We hope to see a focus on research, with substantially less time spent by the teaching staff on administrative tasks. We hope that overall, the profession will accept that there must be a reduction in administrative positions and time spent on teaching-related administrative activities to make the system more effective.

Improving systems
 Several strategies have been developed to help the NHS to improve its financial position. A 2006 National Institute for Health Research (NIHR) report, Improving financial performance: good practice and challenges, says: "The new ways of organising paying providers (contractors) to deliver the goods and services that the system is asked to deliver are the most promising policy direction for England. This direction is being taken forward."
