Economics Made Fun N. Aydinonat, Jack Vromen, 2017-10-02 Best selling books such as Freakonomics and The Undercover Economist have paved the way for the flourishing economics made fun genre While books like these present economics as a strong and explanatory science the ongoing economic crisis has exposed the shortcomings of economics to the general public In the face of this crisis many people including well known economists such as Paul Krugman have started to express their doubts about whether economics is a success as a science As well as academic papers newspaper columns with a large audience have discussed the failure of economic to predict and explain ongoing trends The emerging picture is somewhat confusing economics made fun books present economics as a method of thinking that can successfully explain everyday and freaky phenomena On the other hand however economics seems to fail in addressing and explaining the most pressing matters related to the field of economics itself This book explores the confusion created by this contradictory picture of economics Could a science that cannot answer its own core questions really be used to explain the logic of everyday life This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Economic Methodology

The Weaponization of Expertise Jacob Hale Russell, Dennis Patterson, 2025-03-04 The problem with expertise and the dark side of the equation knowledge power Experts are not infallible Treating them as such has done us all a grave disservice and as The Weaponization of Expertise makes painfully clear given rise to the very populism that all knowing experts and their elite coterie decry Jacob Hale Russell and Dennis Patterson use the devastating example of the COVID 19 pandemic to illustrate their case revealing how the hubris of all too human experts undermined perhaps irreparably public faith in elite policymaking Paradoxically by turning science into dogmatism the overweening elite response has also proved deeply corrosive to expertise itself in effect doing exactly what elite policymakers accuse their critics of doing A much needed corrective to a dangerous blind faith in expertise The Weaponization of Expertise identifies a cluster of pathologies that have enveloped many institutions meant to help referee expert knowledge in particular a disavowal of the doubt uncertainty and counterarguments that are crucial to the accumulation of knowledge At a time when trust in expertise and faith in institutions are most needed and most lacking this work issues a stark reminder that a crisis of misinformation may well begin at the top

Parasocial Politics Jason Zenor, 2014-10-21 The popularity of cable news satire documentaries and political blogs suggest that people are often absorbing and dissecting direct political messages from informational media But entertainment media also discusses the important political issues of our time though not as overtly Nonetheless consumers still learn debate and form opinions on important political issues through their relationship with entertainment media While many scholarly books examine these political messages found in popular culture very few examine how actual audiences read these messages Parasocial Politics explores how consumers form complex relationships with media texts and characters and how these readings exist in the nexus between real and fictional worlds This collection of empirical studies uses various methodologies including surveys experiments focus groups and mixed methods to analyze how actual consumers interpret the texts and the overt and covert political messages encoded in popular culture Mysli

Watts, 2012-06-26 By understanding how and when common sense fails we can improve our understanding of the present and better plan for the future Drawing on the latest scientific research along with a wealth of historical and contemporary examples Watts shows how common sense reasoning and history conspire to mislead us into believing that we understand more about the world of human behavior than we do and in turn why attempts to predict manage or manipulate social and economic systems so often go awry It seems obvious for example that people respond to incentives yet policy makers and managers alike frequently fail to anticipate how people will respond to the incentives they create Social trends often seem to be driven by certain influential people yet marketers have been unable to identify these influencers in advance And although successful products or companies always seem in retrospect to have succeeded because of their unique qualities predicting the qualities of the next hit product or hot company is notoriously difficult even for experienced professionals Watts argument has important implications in politics business and marketing as well as in science and everyday life
