

Timing the Distributor to the Engine - Continued

Illustr. 9
Showing the secondary cable held under the distributor cap spring for final check of timing.

The compression stroke can be determined by removing the No. 1 spark plug, placing your thumb over the opening, and cranking the engine until an outward pressure is felt. The secondary cable should be assembled properly in the coil terminal.

Illustr. 10
Timing pointer.

Turn the ignition switch key clockwise (to the right) and note whether the charge indicator shows discharge. If the charge indicator shows discharge, the points are closed and retarding the distributor is not necessary. If the charge indicator does not show discharge, retard the distributor by turning the body about 30° in the same direction as the cam rotation.

Pull secondary cable "A" (Illustr. 8) out of the center socket on the distributor cap and hold the free end of the cable within 1/16 inch to 1/8 inch from the distributor primary terminal, as shown in Illustr. 8. Advance the distributor by turning the distributor body slowly in a direction opposite to the cam rotation until a spark occurs.

Place the secondary cable under the distributor cap spring and place the terminal within 1/16 inch to 1/8 inch of the distributor primary terminal as shown in Illustr. 9. Make a final check by cranking the engine until the TDC (top dead center) mark (fifth notch) on the back flange of the fan drive pulley is in line with the pointer on the front crankcase cover (see Illustr. 10) and continuing until the spark just occurs at the gap between the secondary cable and the primary terminal. The timing mark should just be in line or slightly past top dead center (never time before top dead center). If necessary, make the required adjustment to have the spark occur as specified. Retighten the distributor mounting bolts.

Power Timing Light

An accurate and fast final check and adjustment of ignition timing is possible with a neon-type timing light, using TDC (top dead center) timing marks and running the engine at the low idle speed. This light requires that the timing marks on the fan drive pulley be whitened with white lead or chalk to make them more visible, and the low idle speed of the engine be adjusted to 375 r.p.m. A higher engine speed will cause the automatic spark advance to function, thus advancing the spark to occur before TDC.
