Mid-term Break

I sat all morning in the college sick bay¹
Counting bells knelling² classes to a close,
At two o'clock our neighbors drove me home.

In the porch I met my father crying—
He had always taken funerals in his stride—
And Big Jim Evans saying it was a hard blow.

The baby cooed and laughed and rocked the pram³
When I came in, and I was embarrassed
By old men standing up to shake my hand

And tell me they were "sorry for my trouble,"
Whispers informed strangers I was the eldest,
Away at school, as my mother held my hand

In hers and coughed out angry tearless sighs.
At ten o'clock the ambulance arrived
With the corpse⁴, stanced and bandaged by the nurses.

Next morning I went up into the room, Snowdrops⁵
And candles soothed the bedside; I saw him
For the first time in six weeks. Paler now,

Wearing a poppy bruise on the left temple,
He lay in the four-foot box as in a cot.
No gaudy scars, the bumper knocked him clear.

A four-foot box, a foot for every year.

Seamus Heaney

Note: Most FAST-R passages have a balance of Referential and Inferential questions; however, due to the style of writing in this poem, we included more inference questions.

Purpose: In this narration of how a college-aged speaker deals with the news of his younger brother's sudden death, Heaney conveys the limitations of language in expressing grief. There is much description about what is happening, but almost none about the speaker's feelings.

See especially: Questions 1–6, 10

Richness: This scene contains coming-of-age themes: As his father is incapacitated by grief, the old men treat the speaker as "the man of the house."

See especially: Questions 7–8

Style and Vocabulary: The syntax is straightforward, with simple sentences and generally accessible vocabulary. As is typical for free verse, some sentences do break across stanzas.

Stanzas 3–4 contain alliteration of the "s" sound, which evokes the whispers of the neighbors and strangers gathered in the home.

See especially: Question 8

Relationships: Readers are left to infer much about the speaker's relationship with his parents and his dead brother, as well as his broader perspective on life and death.

See especially: Question 10
