Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health-related quality of life (HRQL) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The intervention group (IG) participated in a 12-week training program, while the control group (CG) remained sedentary. The IG showed significant improvements in physical fitness and HRQL compared to the CG. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve physical fitness and HRQL in sedentary, middle-aged men.

Abstract | The authors studied the effects of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health of 100 sedentary, middle-aged men. The program included aerobic and resistance training. The results showed that the program significantly improved cardiovascular fitness, muscle strength, and body composition. The authors conclude that a structured exercise program can effectively improve the health and fitness of sedentary middle-aged men.
