Mathematics at the Margins Elizabeth Warren, Jodie Miller, 2016-03-17 This book reports the impact a four year longitudinal study Representations Oral Language and Engagement in Mathematics RoleM had on teachers and students from 16 schools in disadvantaged contexts It offers theories with regard to the interplay between teaching and learning mathematics as teachers and students in these contexts implement a mathematics program The data are longitudinal drawn from 154 teachers and their students up to 1738 students from the first four years of school Foundation to Year 3 To ascertain the effectiveness of the RoleM Professional Learning model teachers were interviewed three times a year and pre and post tests were administered to students at the beginning and end of each year Students results indicated that all students understanding of mathematics improved significantly with the ESL students showing the greatest gains Their results matched the norm referenced expectations for all Australian students of this age This book shares the journey of these teachers Indigenous teacher aides and students It outlines the dimensions of the research findings that supported teachers to become effective teachers of mathematics and assisted students in becoming successful learners of mathematics The book also draws on the expertise of researchers from both Canada and New Zealand They share the similarities and the differences between RoleM findings and their own contexts in order to draw general conclusions for the effective teaching and learning of mathematics at the margins of society

Changing Australian Education Alan Reid, 2020-07-28 Australian education policy for the past 40 years has been heading in the wrong direction and is entirely unsuitable for preparing young people for the 21st century Exaggeration Sadly not For a teacher there is nothing more exhilarating than encouraging young people to realise the power of learning But in our schools today teachers spend so much time preparing their students for high stakes tests gathering data and filling in forms that many of them feel like the life has been squeezed out of their role Schooling has been turned into a market and school leaders are forced to spend precious time and resources competing with other schools Their professional experience is disregarded as policy makers turn to the corporate world and self appointed commentators to determine curriculum and school funding The outcome Our schooling system is becoming more segregated children from poorer backgrounds are falling behind public schools are starved of funds and good teachers are leaving One of the most highly regarded educational leaders in Australia Alan Reid argues it s time to reconsider the purposes of education the capacities we need for the future and the strategies that will get us there He outlines a new narrative for Australian schooling that is futures focused and prizes flexibility adaptability collaboration and agility with students teachers and school communities at centre stage A provocative and persuasive argument for the necessity of a new narrative for Australian schooling so as to meet better the demonstrable demands of the twenty first century Emeritus Professor Bob Lingard The University of Queensland At the heart of the book is a penetrating critique of neoliberalism and the damaging effects it is having on education and society It should be essential reading for policy makers educators parents and anyone interested in the current state of Australian education Professor Barry Down Murdoch University

School Reform in an Era of Standardization Ian Hardy, 2020-12-29 School Reform in an Era of Standardization explores how teachers and school based administrators navigate the processes of accountability and standardization in schooling systems and settings It provides clear insights into how the work and learning of teachers and students in schools have been dramatically reconstituted by increased pressures of external political scrutiny and accountability The book reveals in detail the nature and effects of standardization processes upon schools and schooling systems Specifically it shows how curriculum development teaching and assessment practices have all been recalibrated under conditions of increased external scrutiny of teacher and student work and learning and how such processes are manifest in curriculum dominated by attention to literacy and numeracy more scripted pedagogies and standardized testing However the research not only elaborates the detrimental effects of such processes but also how those responsible for educating in schools teachers heads of curriculum deputy principals and principals have responded proactively by interpreting interrogating and challenging these conditions In this way it provides resources for hope evidence of what are described as more authentic accountabilities and at the same time it provides a clear portrait of the difficulty of fostering substantive curriculum teaching and assessment reform during an era of increasingly reductive accountability processes It will be an invaluable resource for understanding and enhancing practices in schools and school systems in the decades to come and for giving hope to educators in the ongoing work of rebuilding trust in public education

Testing Regimes, Accountabilities and Education Policy Bob Lingard, Goli Rezai-Rashti, Wayne Martino, 2017-10-02 Around the globe various kinds of testing including high stakes national census testing have become meta policies steering educational systems in particular directions and having great effects on schools and on teacher practices as well as upon student learning and curricula There has also been a complementary global aspect to this with the OECD s PISA and IEA s TIMSS and PIRLS which have had impacts on national education systems and their policy frameworks While there has been a globalized educational policy discourse that suggests that high stakes standardised testing will drive up standards and enhance the quality of a nation's human capital and thus their international economic competitiveness this discourse still manifests itself in specific vernacular path dependent ways in different nations High stakes testing and its effects can also be seen as part of the phenomenon of the datafication of the world and policy as numbers linked to other reforms of the state including new public management network governance and top down and test based modes of accountability This edited collection provides theoretically and empirically informed analyses of these developments This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Education Policy Primary

High-Stakes Testing in Education Theo Eggen, Gordon Stobart, 2015-10-14 High stakes educational testing is a global phenomenon which is increasing in both scale and importance Assessments are high stakes when there are serious consequences for one or more stakeholders Historically tests have largely been used for selection or for providing a licence to practise making them high stakes for the test takers Testing is now also used for the purposes of improving standards of teaching and learning and of holding schools accountable for their students results These tests then become high stakes for teachers and schools especially when they have to meet externally imposed targets More recent has been the emergence of international comparative testing which has become high stakes for governments and policy makers as their education systems are judged in relation to the performances of other countries In this book we draw on research which examines each of these uses of high stakes testing The articles evaluate the impact of such assessments and explore the issues of value and fairness which they raise To underline the international appeal of high stakes testing the studies are drawn from Australia Africa the Caribbean Europe former Soviet republics and North America Collectively they illustrate the power of high stakes assessment in shaping for better or for worse policy making and schooling This book was originally published as a special issue of Assessment in Education Principles Policy Practice
