

LANGUAGE SAMPLE ANALYSIS IN THE 21ST CENTURY

Julia L. Evans, Ph.D. and Jon Miller, Ph.D.

ABSTRACT—Time requirements inherent in transcription and analysis of spontaneous language samples represent a significant barrier to the regular use of language sample analysis in clinical settings. Taking advantage of the options provided by new large, fast, and affordable personal microcomputers, two language analysis programs, the Systematic Analysis of Language Transcripts and The Child Language Data Exchange System have been developed to provide automated analysis of a wide range of language indices, as well as tools designed to reduce and simplify the time-intensive process of transcribing and analyzing children's language samples. These packages also provide comparison databases of language samples from both typical and clinical populations. In this article we provide a historical context for the development of these language analysis programs and a brief introduction to the transcription editors and language sample databases for both systems. In addition, a case study highlighting the interactive use of both analysis systems is provided.

KEY WORDS: computers, child language samples, language analysis programs

Language sample analysis (LSA)—data collected from spontaneous interactions in naturally occurring situations—is the cornerstone of any clinical assessment protocol of children's language. Now, with the changes in the new (1998) Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) requiring Individualized Education Plans (IEP) to be monitored yearly for progress, clinicians will need assessment methods that can be used frequently without biasing results. Standardized tests cannot meet this criterion because children begin to learn individual test items over time. More importantly, the content of an intervention program may not be effectively assessed with available standardized tools. The language sample, by contrast, represents the child's integration of specific intervention goals within the larger communication context and provides clinicians with an opportunity to assess children's language skills dynamically across a range of situations that vary in communicative demand (e.g., freeplay, in-
