CONFIGURATION

The VMAX 40K array configurations are designed for extensive storage environments. The array configurations include at least one system bay that can house from one to eight engines, and a number of half or full populated storage bays, depending on the number of engines in the array. Engaged into the one full connecting units that provide cache, CPU power, FibreChannel (host) and back-end connectivity to other in the array.

The maximum array configuration also depends on the type of One Array Architecture (OAA) is used. If one 15-slice standard OAA is used, the maximum array configuration includes an eight-slice system bay and 14 storage bays. If two 15-slice OAA bays are configured, the maximum configuration consists of a system bay and 14 storage bays. Both bay types can be used within the array but not within the same storage bay.

Each bay contains storage bays and dedicated host locations connected to a dedicated engine in the system bay. Depending on the size the bays connected to the engine, they are referred to as sub-engine or dedicated OAA.

System Bay operates as an array management control interface for arrays with three or more engines. The second, physically separated system bay is added when a third (Storage 2), fifth (Storage 3), or seventh (Storage 4) is added to the array. This engine and its subsequent engines are added to the second system bay. The designated system bay placement is suitable for data centers that cannot accommodate large, contiguous array placements. The maximum distance between both system bays is 20 km (12.1 mi).
