Introduction to the Practice of Statistics Excel Manual with Macros Linda Getch Dawson, David S. Moore, George P. McCabe, 2005-03-04 An easy to use software package with excellent graphical capabilities Excel is an ideal way to teach and learn statistics at the introductory level By organizing data into spreadsheets Excel allows for easy analysis and graphic exploration Its versatility convenience and reliability make it an attractive alternative to specialized statistical software This manual was written specifically for using Excel with David Moore and George McCabe's Introduction to the Practice of Statistics Fifth Edition IPS a text that advocates using statistical software to free students from computations allowing them to focus on the more practical matters of data gathering and analysis No prior knowledge of the software is necessary The manual provides a detailed introduction to Excel in the context of IPS and follows the text chapter by chapter to show how to use Excel to work through specific examples and exercises In addition the author developed add in macros to assist in creating boxplots and normal quantile plots a capability that does not exist in standard Excel The macros are available on the textbook companion Web sit and can be downloaded and used on your own computer This manual is compatible with Excel 2000 Windows and Excel 2001 Macintosh and the code successfully operates under all subsequent versions of the software It is also easily adaptable for students using eXcel 97 Windows or Excel 98 Macintosh Back cover

Procedural and declarative information in software manuals Nicole Ummelen, 2022-05-20 People who use software manuals want to get something done Procedural information directly supports this goal but the use of declarative information in manuals has often been under discussion Current research gives rise to the expectation that manual users tend to skip declarative information most of the time Also no effects of declarative information in software manuals have yet been found In this study information use and information effects in software manuals are investigated in three experiments thereby taking different user types different task types and different information arrangements into account A new technique was applied the click read method This technique enables the software user to use the manual and carry out software tasks at the same time while information selection and times are recorded automatically in logfiles For the first time quantitative data are presented about the amounts of procedural and declarative information that were selected and the times that were spent using these information types Although procedural information is selected more often and used longer declarative information appears to be a substantial part of the information selection Moreover the results show that using declarative information positively affects performance on future tasks performance on reasoning tasks and factual knowledge
