Fast Food, Fast Talk Robin Leidner, 1993-08-04 Attending Hamburger University Robin Leidner observes how McDonald's trains the managers of its fast food restaurants to standardize every aspect of service and product Learning how to sell life insurance at a large midwestern firm she is coached on exactly what to say how to stand when to make eye contact and how to build up Positive Mental Attitude by chanting I feel happy I feel terrific Leidner's fascinating report from the frontlines of two major American corporations uncovers the methods and consequences of regulating workers language looks attitudes ideas and demeanor Her study reveals the complex and often unexpected results that come with the routinization of service work Some McDonald's workers resent the constraints of prescribed uniforms and rigid scripts while others appreciate how routines simplify their jobs and give them psychological protection against unpleasant customers Combined Insurance goes further than McDonald's in attempting to standardize the workers very selves instilling in them adroit maneuvers to overcome customer resistance The routinization of service work has both poignant and preposterous consequences It tends to undermine shared understandings about individuality and social obligations sharpening the tension between the belief in personal autonomy and the domination of a powerful corporate culture Richly anecdotal and accessibly written Leidner's book charts new territory in the sociology of work With service sector work becoming increasingly important in American business her timely study is particularly welcome

Distorting the Law William Haltom, Michael McCann, 2009-11-15 In recent years stories of reckless lawyers and greedy citizens have given the legal system and victims in general a bad name Many Americans have come to believe that we live in the land of the litigious where frivolous lawsuits and absurdly high settlements reign Scholars have argued for years that this common view of the depraved ruin of our civil legal system is a myth but their research and statistics rarely make the news William Haltom and Michael McCann here persuasively show how popularized distorted understandings of tort litigation or tort tales have been perpetuated by the mass media and reform proponents Distorting the Law lays bare how media coverage has sensationalized lawsuits and sympathetically portrayed corporate interests supporting big business and reinforcing negative stereotypes of law practices Based on extensive interviews nearly two decades of newspaper coverage and in depth studies of the McDonald s coffee case and tobacco litigation Distorting the Law offers a compelling analysis of the presumed litigation crisis the campaign for tort law reform and the crucial role the media play in this process
