The Impact of Afterschool Tutoring on Reading Achievement of Elementary Students in a Mississippi Rural School Setting Sharone Sanders Lacy, 2011 The purpose of this study was to determine what impact a No Child Left Behind NCLB related afterschool tutoring program had on reading achievement of elementary students in a Mississippi rural school setting The research questions that guided this study were 1 Is there a significant difference between the 2008 and 2009 Mississippi Curriculum Test 2nd Edition MCT2 language arts scores of elementary students who participated in a NCLB related afterschool tutoring program in a Mississippi rural school setting and 2 Is there a significant difference between the 2009 MCT2 language arts scores of elementary students who participated in a NCLB related afterschool tutoring program and those students who did not participate in a NCLB related afterschool tutoring program in a Mississippi rural school setting while controlling for 2008 MCT2 language arts scores To address the research questions a causal comparative research design was used The researcher collected the state s language arts scores of 2008 and 2009 for elementary students who participated in the afterschool tutoring program and performed a paired sample t test to answer research question one To answer research question two the researcher collected the state s language arts scores of 2008 and 2009 for elementary students who participated in the afterschool tutoring program and for eligible students who did not participate in the afterschool tutoring program and performed a univariate analysis of variance The results of this study were twofold The scores of the participants improved Results of the paired sample t test analysis indicated a significant difference in the scores between the 2008 and 2009 MCT2 language arts On the other hand results of the univariate analysis of variance indicated that there was no significant difference between the 2009 MCT2 language arts scores of participants and nonparticipants. Recommendations for further research include conducting an experimental research design on afterschool tutoring and reading achievement in a rural school, analyzing parental involvement while conducting research on afterschool tutoring and reading achievement in rural schools, and observing and comparing a regular classroom setting while conducting research on afterschool tutoring and reading achievement in rural schools.

Predicting Mississippi Curriculum Testing Program, Second Edition Performance Using the Northwest Evaluation Association Measures of Academic Progress Mary Cole, 2014. The purpose of this study was to determine if the Northwest Evaluation Association (NWEA) Measures of Academic Progress (MAP) reading and math assessments are a valid predictor of performance on the language arts and mathematics Mississippi Curriculum Test 2nd Edition (MCT2). Additionally, the researcher sought to determine whether student characteristics of gender, ethnicity, and economically disadvantaged status added statistically to the prediction of MCT2 scores. The researcher used a correlational research design to answer the research questions that guide this study. Regression analyses were performed using IBM Statistical Package for the Social Sciences (SPSS) version 22. Data were collected from a Southern Mississippi school district. Scores from 676 6th grade students and 659 8th grade students were used in this study. The results of simple linear regression indicate that NWEA MAP reading and mathematics assessments are a valid predictor of language arts and mathematics MCT2 scale scores for 6th and 8th grade students. Results of multiple regression indicate that the linear combination of fall reading NWEA MAP RIT scores, spring reading NWEA MAP RIT scores, student characteristics of gender, ethnicity, and economically disadvantaged status was significantly related to MCT2 language arts scale scores for sixth grade students. Likewise, the linear combination of fall reading NWEA MAP RIT scores, spring reading NWEA MAP RIT scores, student characteristics of gender, ethnicity, and economically disadvantaged status was significantly related to MCT2 language arts scale scores for eighth grade students. Similarly, multiple regression analyses indicate that the linear combination of fall mathematics NWEA MAP RIT scores, spring mathematics NWEA MAP RIT scores, student characteristics of gender, ethnicity, and economically disadvantaged status was significantly related to MCT2 mathematics scale scores for sixth grade students. Similarly, the linear combination of fall mathematics NWEA MAP RIT scores, spring mathematics NWEA MAP RIT scores, student characteristics of gender, ethnicity, and economically disadvantaged status was significantly related to MCT2 mathematics scale scores for eighth grade students.

An Examination of a Relationship Between Reading Attitudes and Reading Achievement for a Group of Sixth Grade Students, 2013

The importance of reading proficiency is unquestioned Although the nation has set a goal for all students to be proficient in reading many of the nation s students are not proficient readers The vast majority of research examining reading proficiency and reading achievement has concentrated on the cognitive aspects of reading and the use of scientifically based reading interventions However there is a body of literature that suggests that reading achievement is related to attitudes toward reading The purpose of this study was to determine the recreational and academic reading attitudes of a group of sixth grade students and to determine if their attitudes toward reading were related to measures of their reading achievement This study was guided by seven research questions and utilized three research designs Descriptive research was used to answer research questions one and two which sought to determine the recreational and academic reading attitudes of the sixth grade students participating in this study Causal comparative research was used to answer research questions three and four which compared measures of academic and recreational reading attitudes by gender and ethnicity Research questions five six and seven were answered using correlational research to determine if measures of reading attitudes were related to the scores on the language arts portion of the MCT2 The results of data analyzed to answer the research questions revealed that overall the sixth grade participants in this study had reading attitudes that were less than positive The results also revealed that males had reading attitudes that were more positive than females The results of the analysis of reading attitudes by ethnicity revealed that African American students had higher measures of positive recreational reading attitudes than Caucasian students and the students in the other ethnic group while Caucasian students had higher measures of positive academic reading attitudes than African American students and students in the other ethnic group The only significant relationship discovered between measures of reading attitude and MCT2 scores was a very weak relationship between measures of academic reading attitudes and the language arts section of the MCT2 The study concludes with recommendations for further research
