Marzano,Mark W. Haystead,2008-03-15 Has the standards movement in the United States led to improved classroom instruction and effective assessment In too many cases the answer is no As authors Robert J Marzano and Mark W Haystead explain two major reasons account for this situation state and national standards documents typically identify far more content than teachers can actually teach during a school year and the standards are not written in a manner that supports effective instruction and assessment In Making Standards Useful in the Classroom Marzano and Haystead present a way to convert standards documents into a format that teachers can actually use to guide instruction and to create meaningful formative assessments In Part I of this practical guide teachers administrators and curriculum specialists will find answers to questions such as these What are the steps to follow in unpacking and rewriting standards so they are useful for classroom teachers What is a measurement topic and what kind of content should it include How can measurement topics be organized into a coherent system for learning and assessment Why is averaging a flawed method for calculating grades What is the best way to assess learning and determine a grade that accurately represents students growth in knowledge and skill Part II of the book consists of scoring scales with sample measurement topics for language arts math science and social studies for kindergarten through 8th grade and sample measurement topics for life skills for kindergarten through 12th grade Using the samples as a guide districts and schools can create their own systems for translating standards into useful components of effective instruction and formative assessment that truly drive student learning Note This product listing is for the Adobe Acrobat PDF version of the book

A Song for Europe Robert Deam Tobin, 2017-07-05 The world's largest and longest running song competition the Eurovision Song Contest is a significant and extremely popular media event throughout the continent and abroad The Contest is broadcast live in over 30 countries with over 100 million viewers annually Established in 1956 as a televised spectacle to unify postwar Western Europe through music the Contest features singers who represent a participating nation with a new popular song Viewers vote by phone for their favourite performance though they cannot vote for their own country's entry This process alone reveals much about national identities and identifications as voting patterns expose deep seated alliances and animosities among participating countries Here an international group of scholars from a variety of disciplines including musicology communications history sociology English and German studies explore how the contest sheds light on issues of European politics national and European identity race gender and sexuality and the aesthetics of camp For some countries participation in Eurovision has been simultaneously an assertion of modernity and a claim to membership in Europe and the West Eurovision is sometimes regarded as a low brow camp spectacle of little aesthetic or intellectual value The essays in this collection often contradict this assumption demonstrating that the contest has actually been a significant force and forecaster for social cultural and political transformations in postwar Europe
