Brain stimulation: from basic research to clinical use Alia Benali, Ken-Ichiro Tsutsui, Friederike Pfeiffer, Masaki Sekino, 2022-12-08 The brain meets the body: Neural basis of cognitive contribution in movement for healthy and neurological populations Daniela De Bartolo, Valeria Belluscio, Alex Martino Cinnera, Viviana Betti, 2023-11-06 TMS application in both health and disease Joao Miguel Castelhana, Sandra Carvalho, 2023-02-06 The Human Central Nervous System Rudolf Nieuwenhuys, Jan Voogd, Christiaan van Huijzen, 2007-12-31 The present edition of The Human Central Nervous System differs considerably from its predecessors In previous editions the text was essentially confined to a section dealing with the various functional systems of the brain This section which has been rewritten and updated is now preceded by 15 newly written chapters which introduce the pictorial material of the gross anatomy the blood vessels and meninges and the microstructure of its various parts and deal with the development topography and functional anatomy of the spinal cord the brain stem and the cerebellum the diencephalon and the telencephalon Great pains have been taken to cover the most recent concepts and data As suggested by the front cover there is a focus on the evolutionary development of the human brain Throughout the text numerous correlations with neuropathology and clinical neurology have been made After much thought we decided to replace the full Latin terminology cherished in all previous editions with English and Anglicized Latin terms It has been an emotional farewell from beautiful terms such as decussatio hipposideriformis Wnekinkii and pontes grisei caudatolenticulares Not only the text but also the pictorial material has been extended and brought into harmony with the present state of knowledge More than 230 new illustrations have been added and many others have been revised The number of macroscopical sections through the brain has been extended considerably Together these illustrations now comprise a complete and convenient atlas for interpreting neuroimaging studies Online and Offline Modulators of Motor Learning Shahabeddin Vahdat, Ovidiu Lungu, Bradley King, Geneviève Albouy, Julien Doyon, 2017-05-25 Both the acquisition of new and the modification of previously acquired motor skills are necessary to achieve optimal levels of motor performance in everyday functioning as well as to attain expert performance levels that are evident in sports and arts A multitude of factors have been shown to influence the various stages of the learning process from the acquisition i.e. motor memory encoding to the consolidation and subsequent retention of a skill These factors or modulators can affect learning through online processes taking place during practice of a new motor skill or through offline processes occurring in the absence of task performance i.e. after training sessions Although much of the recent research from various disciplines has placed an increased emphasis on identifying factors that can influence the motor learning process we lack an integrated understanding of online and offline determinants of motor skill behaviours Potential motor learning modulators include but are certainly not limited to stress anxiety attention executive functioning social interaction stimulus response mapping training schedule regimen learning environment vigilance consciousness states including sleep wakefulness or meditation brain stimulation interference as well as resting state brain connectivity Pathological and non pathological i e development or aging changes in the brain can also be conceptualized as potential modulators The aim of this Research Topic is to bridge research from the cognitive sensory motor and psychological domains using various behavioural paradigms and neuroimaging techniques in order to provide a comprehensive view of the online and offline modulators of motor learning and how they interact to influence motor performance Critically the overarching goal is to gain a better understanding of how motor behaviour can be optimized We believe that merging research from diverse neuroscientific communities would contribute to fulfilling this goal and potentially highlight possible shared neurophysiological mechanisms influencing motor learning

How Humans Recognize Objects: Segmentation, Categorization and Individual Identification Chris Fields, 2016-08-18 Human beings experience a world of objects bounded entities that occupy space and persist through time Our actions are directed toward objects and our language describes objects We categorize objects into kinds that have different typical properties and behaviors We regard some kinds of objects each other for example as animate agents capable of independent experience and action while we regard other kinds of objects as inert We re identify objects immediately and without conscious deliberation after days or even years of non observation and often following changes in the features locations or contexts of the objects being re identified Comparative developmental and adult observations using a variety of approaches and methods have yielded a detailed understanding of object detection and recognition by the visual system and an advancing understanding of haptic and auditory information processing Many fundamental questions however remain unanswered What for example physically constitutes an object How do specific classically characterizable object boundaries emerge from the physical dynamics described by quantum theory and can this emergence process be described independently of any assumptions regarding the perceptual capabilities of observers How are visual motion and feature information combined to create object information How are the object trajectories that indicate persistence to human observers implemented and how are these trajectory representations bound to feature representations How for example are point light walkers recognized as single objects How are conflicts between trajectory driven and feature driven identifications of objects resolved for example in multiple object tracking situations Are there separate what and where processing streams for haptic and auditory perception Are there haptic and or auditory equivalents of the visual object file Are there equivalents of the visual object token How are object identification conflicts between different perceptual systems resolved Is the common assumption that persistent object is a fundamental innate category justified How does the ability to identify and categorize objects relate to the ability to name and describe them using language How are features that an individual object had in the past but does not have currently represented How are categorical constraints on how objects move or act represented and how do such constraints influence categorization and the re identification of individuals How do human beings re identify objects including each other as persistent individuals across changes in location context and features even after gaps in observation lasting months or years How do human capabilities for object categorization and re identification over time relate to those of other species and how do human infants develop these capabilities What can modeling approaches such as cognitive robotics tell us about the answers to these questions Primary research reports reviews and hypothesis and theory papers addressing questions relevant to the understanding of perceptual object segmentation categorization and individual identification at any scale and from any experimental or modeling perspective are solicited for this Research Topic Papers that review particular sets of issues from multiple disciplinary perspectives or that advance integrative hypotheses or models that take data from multiple experimental approaches into account are especially encouraged
