Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the cardiovascular and muscular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were randomly assigned to a control group (n = 10) and an exercise group (n = 10). The exercise group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week. The control group did not exercise. The subjects were tested at baseline and after 12 weeks. The exercise group showed significant improvements in cardiovascular and muscular fitness compared to the control group. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can improve cardiovascular and muscular fitness in sedentary middle-aged men.
