Making College Work Harry J. Holzer, Sandy Baum, 2017-08-15 Practical solutions for improving higher education opportunities for disadvantaged students Too many disadvantaged college students in America do not complete their coursework or receive any college credential while others earn degrees or certificates with little labor market value Large numbers of these students also struggle to pay for college and some incur debts that they have difficulty repaying The authors provide a new review of the causes of these problems and offer promising policy solutions The circumstances affecting disadvantaged students stem both from issues on the individual side such as weak academic preparation and financial pressures and from institutional failures Low income students disproportionately attend schools that are underfunded and have weak performance incentives contributing to unsatisfactory outcomes for many students Some solutions including better financial aid or academic supports target individual students Other solutions such as stronger linkages between coursework and the labor market and more structured paths through the curriculum are aimed at institutional reforms All students and particularly those from disadvantaged backgrounds also need better and varied pathways both to college and directly to the job market beginning in high school We can improve college outcomes but must also acknowledge that we must make hard choices and face difficult tradeoffs in the process While no single policy is guaranteed to greatly improve college and career outcomes implementing a number of evidence based policies and programs together has the potential to improve these outcomes substantially

Beauchamp,2014-09-19 The best scholarship on the development of contemporaryJapan This collection presents well over 100 scholarly articles on modern Japanese society written by leading scholars in the field These selections have been drawn from the most distinguished scholarly journals as well as from journals that are less well known among specialists and the articles represent the best and most important scholarship on their particular topic An understanding of the present through the lens of the past The field of modern Japan studies has grown steadily as Westerners have recognized the importance of Japan as a leading world economic force and an emerging regional power The post 1945 economic success of the Japanese has however been achieved in the context of that nation s history social structure educational enterprise and political environment It is impossible to understand the postwar economic miracle without an appreciation of these elements Japan s economic emergence has brought about and in some cases exacerbated already existing tensions and these tensions have in turn had a significant impact on Japanese economic life The series is designed to give readers a basic understanding of modern Japan its institutions and its people as we stand on the threshold of a new century often referred to as the Pacific Century The End of Public Schools David W. Hursh,2015-10-16 The End of Public Schools analyzes the effect of foundations corporations and non governmental organizations on the rise of neoliberal principles in public education By first contextualizing the privatization of education within the context of a larger educational crisis and with particular emphasis on the Gates Foundation and influential state and national politicians it describes how specific policies that limit public control are advanced across all levels Informed by a thorough understanding of issues such as standardized testing teacher tenure and charter schools David Hursh provides a political and pedagogical critique of the current school reform movement as well details about the increasing resistance efforts on the part of parents teachers and the general public The Rise and Fall of Civic Education Michael Learn,2024-09-16 Social studies is a field in crisis The crisis stems from failure to establish the very foundation of social studies purpose in public education civic education Social studies advocates have never put forth a coherent method for teaching civic education because policymakers and the public have been unable to agree upon a general definition of civic education This issue has disrupted the field since the early days As educators sought to include civic education within public schools as a dedicated field social studies evolved into a blending of history social sciences and civic education Social studies evolution never resolved the differences between the three with each discipline striving to control the narrative Instead of creating a unified field the disciplines devalued social studies and thus any discipline associated with it The Rise and Fall of Civic Education The Battle for Social Studies in a Shifting Historical Landscape investigates the changing definitions and purposes ascribed to social studies in the United States through time This result is viewed through the rising tensions from culture wars as America s divisive politics fight to control the narrative of the disciplines within social studies Federal Register ,2013-08 Education as Cultivation in Chinese Culture Shihkuan Hsu,Yuh-Yin Wu,2014-10-24 Given the increasing global interest in Chinese culture this book uses case studies to describe and interpret Chinese cultivation in contemporary Taiwanese schools Cultivation is a concept unique to Chinese culture and is characterized by different attitudes towards teaching and learning compared to Western models of education The book starts with a discussion of human nature in Chinese schools of philosophy and levels of goodness Following the philosophical background is a presentation of how cultivation is practiced in Chinese culture from prenatal through high school education The case studies focus both on how students are cultivated as they become members of Chinese society and on what role teachers play in cultivating the children in school In addition supports from Chinese educational institutions including public schools families and organizations such as private cram schools are introduced and explained In closing the book presents a critique of the modern school reform movement and the conflicts between the reform proposals and traditional practices Based on the collective work of Taiwanese researchers in the fields of education history and anthropology the book identifies the purpose of education as cultivating virtue in a process of creating an ideal person who serves society and describes the way teachers have carried on this tradition despite its faltering status in contemporary educational discourse and in the face of reform movements Handbook of Research on Educational Technology Integration and Active Learning Keengwe, Jared,2015-05-31 As today s teachers prepare to instruct a new generation of students the question is no longer whether technology should be integrated into the classroom but only how Forced to combat shorter attention spans and an excess of stimuli teachers sometimes see technology as a threat rather than a potential enhancement to traditional teaching methods The Handbook of Research on Educational Technology Integration and Active Learning explores the need for new professional development opportunities for teachers and educators as they utilize emerging technologies to enhance the learning experience Highlighting the advancements of ubiquitous computing authentic learning and student centered instruction this book is an essential reference source for educators academics students researchers and librarians

Childhood Sexuality and AIDS Education Deevia Bhana,2015-08-27 Primary schoolchildren are frequently shielded from education on sexuality and sexually transmitted diseases in an effort to protect their innocence In countries like South Africa where AIDS is particularly widespread it is especially important to address prevention with younger boys and girls as active social agents with the capacity to engage with AIDS as gendered and sexual beings This volume addresses the question of children's understanding of AIDS not simply in terms of their dependence but as active participants in the interpretation of their social worlds. The volume draws on an interview and ethnographic based study of young children in two socially diverse South African primary schools as well as interviews conducted with teachers and mothers of young children. It shows how adults sustain the production of childhood sexual innocence and the importance of scaling up programs in AIDS intervention, gender and sexuality. It makes significant contributions to the global debate around childhood sexualities, gender and AIDS education.
