

CUNEiform

Write Like a Sumerian!

Cuneiform is noted as the oldest form of writing. Cuneiforms were developed in Mesopotamia as a method of communication. Cuneiforms included a combination of pictographs, symbols representing entire words and phonograms (symbols representing a syllable or sound). Early Sumerian writing began as a pictographic system with simple pictures and symbols, which represented a whole object or idea. Sumerians developed pictures of objects and animals to represent the words. Symbols for numbers, names, and other words such as writing and working were represented with abstract symbols. This was a revolutionary development because it allowed a more sophisticated writing system. The evolution of the pictorial system of writing provided a more abstract idea, which represented sounds, instead of whole objects. The symbol for water could be used to represent the word "water" because the two words sounded alike. This is the same concept as the alphabet used today. The Cuneiform system of writing developed over a period of 100 years and eventually grew into a more complex system. By 3000 B.C., the Sumerians had developed a complete system of writing.

Cuneiforms were used when carved into clay tablets with fluted lines. Some fluted lines were used to create a grid or they were used to create a series of lines. Many of the clay tablets found in Mesopotamia were used as a record of business transactions. They were used as a record of business transactions.
