

Introduction to Financial Management

Financial Management

A finance manager plays a vital role in a company's success. As cash flows into a company, the finance manager comes up with ways on how to use it daily and how it can help the company sustain its future generations. If finance is the center of all company activities, its management can be difficult because the finance manager has to be involved in every activity. The finance manager has to be aware of all the operations, marketing strategies, and overall strategic plans of the company.

In the past, a finance manager only involves himself/herself in simple bookkeeping tasks such as documentation, recordkeeping, preparation of financial reports, and payment of company bills (Van Horne, 2005). Through time, the task of a finance manager evolved, going deeply into the major aspects of a company's activities. This critical development resulted in the emergence of financial management.

Financial management is often mistakenly associated with accounting; however, financial management goes beyond accounting. Financial management is more concerned with raising, allocating, and controlling a company's funds. In times of financial trouble, the finance manager must find ways to control and improve a company's financial position. The following are common questions finance managers have to tackle and answer: Should the company borrow money? Is it a short- or long-term need? Did the company generate enough resources to fund its activities? Does the company need to issue additional shares of stocks?

If a company has enough money, the finance manager again has to be knowledgeable about the way the company should allocate funds in order to generate wealth for stockholders. The finance manager must determine the best course of action a company should take to maximize financial opportunities such as investing in short-term marketable securities, paying company debts, or paying dividends to stockholders.

A dividend policy decision is a significant aspect of financial management. The finance manager must be able to suggest what dividend policy a company should adopt. A company's dividend policy can be used to attract investors; it determines the kind of investors the company will have, as well as the kind of company it will be in the future.

Learning Objectives

At the end of this chapter, the students should be able to:

- discuss the primary objective of financial management;
- distinguish profit maximization from stockholders' wealth maximization;
- identify the primary functions of the finance manager;
- analyze problems that are applicable to finance;
- differentiate sole proprietorship, partnership, and corporation; and
- define the basic features, advantages, and disadvantages of the different forms of business organization.
