Carolina Matt and Joshua provide an excellent resource on John's Gospel. With a clear outline of content, a concise purpose for writing, and a faithful handling of the text, as it points to Jesus, the authors give the reader a valuable resource for study and preaching. They herald a clear message to remind the reader: The gospel is the good news that you no longer have to wander about in the darkness and despair of sin, but you can enjoy the light of righteousness through Jesus Christ. p. 27. I commend this commentary as it will prove beneficial for many for years to come.

Lane Harrison, D. Min, lead pastor, LifePoint Church, Ozark, Missouri: The Gospel of John has no shortage of commentaries, raising the obvious question: what sets this one apart from all the others? The unique contribution of Matt Carter's work is rooted in his personal profile. Carter is both a highly successful church planter and long-tenured pastor who has built and led a large church through text-driven preaching. A church holding forth the truth in the heart of one of the most socially liberal cities in the country. A church that has multiplied itself many times over through planting new churches in their own city and in some of the most difficult countries on the planet. As a trustworthy twenty-first-century pastor-theologian, Carter has not only produced a commentary but a sermon and bible study starter for preachers and teachers seeking to accurately interpret and prophetically apply the Word of God to this radically changing culture.

Nathan Lino, senior pastor, Northeast Houston Baptist Church, president, Southern Baptists of Texas Convention: This commentary on John is incredibly practical. Written from a pastor's heart, it provides both deep theological insight and practical application. Both ministers of the gospel and people in the pew need this work.

Jerry McCorkle, executive director, SpreadTruth Ministries, Bloomington, Illinois: As a pastor for more than twenty-one years, I appreciate a commentary that stands on solid scholarship while at the same time fitting comfortably in the pulpit. Any pastor, teacher, or small group leader will be able to open this book and find a Christ-centered resource at their fingertips which will enhance their preaching or teaching ministry. In fact, any believer reading this Christ-centered exposition will find themselves learning more about the Lord Jesus Christ and His place in Scripture.

The Christ-Centered Exposition Commentary series seeks to exalt Jesus. This volume succeeds in meeting that goal.

Eric Peacock, D. Min, senior pastor, Westchester Baptist Church, High Point, North Carolina: As the church navigates an age of profound confusion and doubt, the Gospel of John serves as an immovable anchor. This commentary is an invaluable tool for believers in understanding and applying God's Word to our lives as we combat the litany of competing worldviews that surround us. This work remains faithful to the timeless truth of Scripture while challenging contemporary issues in a thoughtful manner. Believers will be well served by using this book to supplement their efforts to delight in God's Word and to live by faith in Jesus, the Savior of the world.

Kevin Peck, lead pastor, The Austin Stone Community Church, Austin, Texas: John said the purpose of his Gospel was so that you may believe that Jesus is the Messiah, the Son of God, and that by believing you may have life in his name. 20:31. This volume is a literary GPS in helping us arrive at that place. Carter and Wredberg wed exegetical integrity with sermonical beauty, and they combine historical accuracy with contemporary relevance, all to show us Jesus. Pastors, teachers, and all who love the Bible and its
