

Ethnogeography: A Future for Primary Geography and Primary Geography Research?

Fran Martin

Senior Lecturer in Primary Education, University College Worcester

A common theme of the papers presented in this forum is that of the importance of listening to children's voices. The key messages conveyed by the authors are synthesised in this paper and the implications for the development of the subject and research within it are considered. This is then placed in the context of some recent doctoral research that draws on beginning teachers' voices and proposes a new way of conceptualising primary geography – ethnogeography – that might set an agenda for the future development and direction of primary geography research.

Keywords: children, voices, curriculum, perceptions, ethnogeography, imagination

Children's Voices

In the opening paper Catling puts forward a compelling argument for listening to children's voices, raising issues for the development of primary geography research that can be summarised under four broad headings:

- teaching for learning;
- resources;
- the curriculum;
- the future of the subject.

The first three will be examined briefly, drawing on the key messages conveyed by the authors in this publication, and an initial agenda for future research will be identified. The remainder of the paper will examine the subject issue in greater depth, drawing on some recent doctoral research into beginning teachers' development as teachers of primary geography.

Teaching for learning

As part of the agenda of building on 'where children are' it is crucial for us to identify their current levels of knowledge, understanding, skills and attitudes. In terms of children's conceptions and misconceptions of the physical world, Mackintosh and Halocho demonstrate the need for teachers to elicit children's alternative frameworks about rivers and coastal processes. Mackintosh goes on to suggest that teachers can use this information to take a bottom-up approach to progression in learning that uses concept ladders, rather than the more traditional top-down approach which focuses on progression in teaching. Halocho, Mackintosh and Owens stress the importance of outdoor learning as a key element in

Research Paper, 1975 Paleoclimatology and Paleometeorology: Modern and Past Patterns of Global Atmospheric Transport Margaret Leinen, Michael Sarnthein, 2012-12-06 The NATO Advanced Research Workshop on Paleoclimatology and Paleometeorology Modern and Past Patterns of Global Atmospheric Transport held at Oracle Arizona USA from November 17 19 1987 brought together atmospheric chemists physicists and meteorologists who study the origin and transport of modern day mineral and biological aerosols with geologists and paleobotanists who study the sedimentary record of eolian and hydrologic processes along with modelers who study and conceptualize the processes influencing atmospheric transport at present and in the past Presentations at the workshop provided a guide to our present knowledge of the entire spectrum of processes and phenomena important to the generation transport and deposition of eolian terrigenous material that ultimately becomes part of the geologic record and the modeling techniques that used to represent these processes The presentations on the geologic record of eolian deposition documented our present understanding of the nature and causes of climate change on time scales of the last glacial ages tens of thousands of years to time scales over which the arrangement of continents mountains and oceans has changed substantially tens of millions of years There has been a growing recognition of the importance of global climatic changes to the future well being of humanity In particular the climatic response to human alterations to the earth's surface and chemical composition has led to concern over the agricultural ecological and societal impacts of such potential global changes The Behavioural Environment F.W. Boal, D.N. Livingstone, 2003-09-02 Placing human action and perception at the centre of the subject this book considers the effects of mankind on the environment drawing particularly from William Kirk's work on the behavioural environment model Reviewing Kirk's original model in light of recent ideological debate and extensive new evidence this collection of essays from leading names in the field shows that a behavioural approach is essential in understanding human geography and man's relationship with the ecological environment A Guide to Information Sources in the Geographical Sciences Stephen Goddard, 1983-01-01 Geography is a wide ranging discipline and the number of information sources available is truly enormous These include printed books and journal articles maps satellite photographs archives statistical information and much else One particular problem facing geographers is that when one studies a foreign country information may be available only in the foreign country and difficult to obtain This book discusses the information sources available to geographers Urban Regimes and Strategies A. G. Papadopoulos, 1996-11-15 If a city based its planning decisions on the needs of an international bureaucracy rather than on the traditional needs of local residents and businesses how would that city change Alex G Papadopoulos addresses this question with a detailed study of how the nineteenth century quarters of Leopold and Nord Est in Brussels have been transformed materially and functionally since the European Communities decided to locate their administrative headquarters there in 1957 Drawing on game and rational choice theories spatial analysis and urban morphology studies Papadopoulos analyzes how the landscape of Brussels's center has evolved over the last three decades under the influence of successive coalitions of local and foreign elites He describes how international real estate developers form ephemeral flexible and specialized regimes of cooperation with governmental organizations at all levels and with special interest lobbies to carry out major urban projects while local neighborhood groups conservationists and political factions such as the Green Party oppose them with qualitatively similar regimes of resistance

Concepts and Techniques in Urban Analysis 'Bola Ayeni,2017-10-12 This book first published in 1979 discusses the concepts models and techniques used in urban analysis and planning This study reviews many of the older concepts and models of urban spatial structure laying the foundations of analysis carried out in the later parts of the book Topics such as social area analysis urban economic activity and spatial interaction are considered This comprehensive study of geography and planning presents a distinctive contribution to the understanding of the nature of the city and its inherent problems
