industry or regional level to basic mathematical modelling research. It is the combination of the activities on these last two topics that led the Fondazione to organise with the University of Geneva a workshop where operation research tools were designed with the aim to provide national and local policy makers with appropriate analytical and policy instruments for environmental management. In the recent past attention has often been devoted to global environmental issues in which the level of policy making is either international through multi country agreements on emission control or national when environmental policies are designed to control domestic pollution. Many environmental problems however have a local or regional dimension. Even when their dimension is global e.g. in the case of the greenhouse gas effect relevant decisions on emission control such as the adoption of energy saving utilities are taken at the local level. In many countries the current legislation imposes the local authorities to prepare plans and adopt measures to control energy consumption or to reduce waste of natural resources. It is therefore important to analyze the way in which local or regional authorities optimise their environmental management.

Hormones and Person Perception Lisa L. M. Welling, 2025-08-11 Researchers have increasingly acknowledged the influence of biology in person perception and considerably more research has been published on this topic in humans over the last three decades. Evidence suggests that how we perceive others is not only influenced by our environment but by chemical messengers found within the body including endogenous i.e. natural and exogenous i.e. synthetic hormones. Yet the putative relationship between hormones and human behavior remains both controversial and disputed and the methods
