

Abstract—This study examined the effects of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The program was designed to be a safe, enjoyable, and accessible form of physical activity for women with no previous experience with exercise. The program was evaluated using a pretest-posttest design. The results showed that the program had a positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the women. The program was well-received by the women, and the results suggest that it may be a viable option for promoting physical activity in this population.
