

Philosophy:

Peel- founded the Met Police in 1829 and sums up the philosophy of the police:

1. Their basic mission is preventing crime/disorder.
2. Their ability to perform duties is dependent on the public's cooperation and approval.
3. Using physical force is the last resort.
4. Police are the public & the public are the police- the police are just citizens in uniform who uphold the law like all citizens must.

Aims and objectives:

Association of Chief Police Officers- set out the aims of the police:

1. Keep peace/maintain order.
2. Protect life/property.
3. Prevent, detect & investigate crime.
4. Brings offenders to justice.

The police try to achieve these by using their powers, like stop & search, arrest, question, detain, etc.

Funding:

The total police budget for 2020/21 was £15.28, which comes from 3 sources:

1. 2/3 from central government.
2. Most from local council tax.
3. Small amount from charging for service like policing football matches

Police funding fell by 19% during 2010-18, which led to a fall of 20,000 in police numbers.

Working practices:

1. National & local reach- there's 39 regional forces in England (like Met police), 4 in Wales (like South Wales Police) & 1 each in Scotland and Northern Ireland.
 2. Types of criminality & offender- the police deal with almost all offenders, but some specialist agencies deal with certain crimes, like HM Revenue and Customs dealing with fraud/tax evasion.
 3. Police duties- general duties like patrolling the area, working with community, answering calls, securing crime scenes, gathering witness evidence and apprehending offenders.
 4. Specialist policing- there's departments with specialist duties like Criminal Investigations Department, fraud & drugs squad, specialist branch. Some forces have other specialists like air support, river police and dog handler units. Other forces operate as part of the National Crime Agency, like child exploitation & online protection, or as part of the Met Police, like SO15 (counter terrorism).
- Unarmed policing- this is most of Britain's police, as to reflect Peel's view that force is the last resort.
 - Special constables- unpaid, part-time volunteers who have the same training and legal powers as paid officers.
 - Police Community Support Officers (PCSOs)- limited powers to deal with street anti-social behaviour, like issuing fixed penalty notices for littering/underage drinkers, and asking officers to arrest someone.
 - Police and Crime Commissioners (PCCs)- elected representatives of the area covered by a police force, who give the locals a voice in policing. They aim to cut crime and ensure efficient/effective policing, as well as setting the local force's priorities, budget, and holding the Chief Constable to account.
