Contemporary Research and Perspectives on Early Childhood Mathematics Education Iliada Elia, Joanne Mulligan, Ann Anderson, Anna Baccaglini-Frank, Christiane Benz, 2018-02-21. This book brings together a collection of research-based papers on current issues in early childhood mathematics education that were presented in the Topic Study Group 1 TSG 1 at the 13th International Congress on Mathematical Education ICME 13 held at the University of Hamburg in 2016. It will help readers understand a range of key issues that early childhood mathematics educators encounter today. Research on early childhood mathematics education has grown in recent years due in part to the well-documented positive relation between children's early mathematical knowledge and their later mathematics learning and to the considerable emphasis many countries are now placing on preschool education. The book addresses a number of central questions including: What is mathematical structural development and how can we promote it in early childhood? How can multimodality and embodiment contribute to early mathematics learning and to acquiring a better understanding of young children's mathematical development? How can children's informal mathematics-related experiences affect instruction and children's learning in different mathematics content areas? What is the role of tools including technology and picture books in supporting early mathematics learning? What are the challenges in early childhood mathematics education for teachers' education and professional development?

Executive Function and Education Mariëtte Huizinga, Dieter Baeyens, Jacob A. Burack, 2018-09-21 Executive function is an umbrella term for various cognitive processes that are central to goal directed behavior thoughts and emotions These processes are especially important in novel or demanding situations which require a rapid and flexible adjustment of behavior to the changing demands of the environment The development of executive function relies on the maturation of associated brain regions as well as on stimulation in the child's social contexts especially the home and school. Over the past decade the term executive function has become a buzzword in the field of education as both researchers and educators underscore the importance of skills like goal setting, planning and organizing in academic success. Accordingly, in initiating this Research Topic and eBook, our goal was to provide a forum for state-of-the-art theoretical and empirical work on this that both facilitates communication among researchers from diverse fields and provides a theoretically sound source of information for educators. The contributors to this volume, who hail from several different countries in Europe and North America, have certainly accomplished this goal in their nuanced and cutting-edge depictions of the complex links among various executive function components and educational success. TMS 2014 143rd Annual Meeting & Exhibition, Annual Meeting Supplemental Proceedings

The Minerals, Metals & Materials Society (TMS), 2016-12-16. These papers present advancements in all aspects of high temperature electrochemistry from the fundamental to the empirical and from the theoretical to the applied. Topics involving the application of electrochemistry to the nuclear fuel cycle, chemical sensors, energy storage materials, synthesis, refractory metals and their alloys, and alkali and alkaline earth metals are included. Also included are papers that discuss various technical, economic and environmental issues associated with plant operations and industrial practices. Chinese Students in UK Further Education Rosemary A. Reynolds, 2017-12-15. Chinese students in the UK have been increasing in number for many years, yet competition from other Western educators and increasing investment in China's own education system has led to concern that UK institutions may soon see a decline in their market share. Dr Reynolds addresses this issue in Chinese Students in UK Further Education by attempting to understand students' experiences from their perspective. Beginning with an exploration of why these students choose to come and study in the UK and why they are coming at younger ages, the book goes on to discuss topics such as risk, technology and diversity in order to understand which factors have the greatest influence on where they choose to study and whether they choose to remain at an institution. Drawing on data from two different education institutions, providers of GCSE A level programmes for students aged 16-18 years, Dr Reynolds attempts to understand what these students experience during their studies, how they manage new social relationships and whether, upon course completion, they achieved the results they desired at the outset. Moreover, the book aims to ascertain whether the students feel in hindsight that the decision to risk investing in UK further education was right and what they might communicate about UK study to contacts in China and elsewhere. The book examines what further education institutions do well and where they might improve to help develop Chinese students' educational experiences. As such, it will be essential reading for academics, researchers and postgraduates in the fields of further education, sociology of education, international and intercultural education and mobility studies.
