Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons,2010 Key Maths ,2001 Corporate DNA Arnold Kransdorff,2017-05-15 For more than half a century the developed world has been chasing productivity It s financed our wealth but that part of output on which our continued prosperity depends productivity growth is petering out The traditional scapegoat has been the dearth of worker skills But the worker skills base has never been higher The other explanation is that it is managers who are not giving full value to their employers The way they re making decisions is conferring virtually no upside potential which means they re leaving us wide open for experience poor competitors to step into our experience rich shoes Exactly as Japan did in the 1960s and the so called BRICK countries Brazil Russia India China especially China and Korea are threatening now If creeping uncompetitiveness is not to overtake us from where are the next round of productivity gains to come from Identifying some gaping holes in the way managers are taught to manage this book outlines both the size of the problem and a solution Businesses and other organizations the author says have to substantially raise the quality of their decision making For this to happen they need to be much better experiential learners And for experiential learning to take place companies and other institutions have to better manage their corporate DNA the institution specific experiences otherwise known as Organizational Memory OM which characterizes any organization s ability to perform is the single biggest influence on decision making excellence It is a factor of production that has already been paid for at great expense yet is readily discarded in the backwash of the biggest change in workplace practice for more than a century the actively encouraged flexible labour market Corporate DNA explains why this key component of intellectual capital should be better managed can be better managed and particularly how it can be used to help organizations reduce the pandemic of repeated mistakes rei Higher Chris Humble, Fiona McGill, 2001 For examination success this highly acclaimed course has been designed to be enjoyable and motivating for students and teachers Educating the next generation of scientists Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts, 2011-01-20 A strong supply of people with science technology engineering and maths skills is important for the UK to compete internationally The starting point is a good education for children and young people in science and maths The numbers studying separate GCSE biology chemistry and physics known as Triple Science when studied together have risen by almost 150% between 2004 05 and 2009 10 Attainment has also improved as take up has increased Nevertheless there is a risk that this progress will not be maintained There are still not enough teachers with strong subject knowledge in science and maths entering the profession In 2009 10 there were over 115 000 entries to GCSE biology 113 000 to chemistry and 112 000 to physics Another 40 000 pupils entered A level chemistry and almost 70 000 A level maths If the higher numbers of pupils taking science and maths are to achieve good results they need to be taught by teachers with the specialist knowledge to teach these subjects well Teaching environments are also vitally important in improving take up and achievement in science but there is evidence that science facilities in many schools are unsatisfactory and even unsafe Furthermore in some schools advice and guidance on science and maths related careers is poor The Department must approach the challenge of improving school science and maths through a coherent system wide strategy rather than as a number of initiatives operating in isolation As more autonomy is given to schools the Department must develop an accountability framework that gives schools strong incentives to put all key elements in place for the benefit of their pupils
