Cognition and Acquired Language Disorders - E-Book Richard K. Peach, Lewis P. Shapiro, 2011-12-10 This new graduate level textbook Cognition and Acquired Language Disorders An Information Processing Approach addresses the cognitive aspects of language and communication It assembles the most recent information on this topic addressing normal cognitive processing for language in adults the cognitive impairments underlying language disorders arising from a variety of neurologic conditions and current assessment and treatment strategies for the management of these disorders The text is organized using an information processing approach to acquired language disorders and thus can be set apart from texts that rely upon a more traditional syndrome based approach e g stroke dementia and traumatic brain injury This approach facilitates the description and treatment of acquired language disorders across many neurologic groups when particular cognitive deficits are identified Other useful features of the text include assessment and treatment protocols that are based on current evidence These protocols provide students and clinicians a ready clinical resource for managing language disorders due to deficits in attention memory linguistic operations and executive functions Unique process oriented approach organizes content by cognitive processes instead of by syndromes so you can apply the information and treatment approaches to any one of many neurologic groups with the same cognitive deficit Cognitive domains are described as they relate to communication rather than separated as they are in many other publications where they are treated as independent behaviors A separate section on normal processing includes five chapters providing a strong foundation for understanding the factors that contribute to disordered communication and its management The evidence based approach promotes best practices for the most effective management of patients with cognitive communication disorders Coverage of the cognitive aspects of communication helps you meet the standards for certification in speech language pathology A strong author team includes two lead authors who are well known and highly respected in the academic community along with expert contributors ensuring a comprehensive advanced clinical text reference

There have been many important changes in the participation of women and men in American society over the past quarter century Tests play a role in those changes by providing evidence of the diverse achievement and proficiency of women and men They aid the learning process and reflect inequalities in opportunity to learn and participate In addition they provide useful information in considering what alternatives in education and work make most sense for individuals and influence views about groups of students educational programs and a wide range of issues For all of these reasons it is important that tests assess fairly and reflect accurately the ways young people are and are not achieving as well as desired The test performance of women and men is a research topic of historical interest and has received much attention in recent years Because of this increased interest there is a great deal of new research and data available The purpose of the study presented in this volume was to review this new information with two objectives in mind to clarify patterns of gender difference and similarity in test performance and related achievements and to see what implications those findings might have for fair assessment and as a corollary examine the assessment process as a possible source of gender differences This study is interested in tests used in education to assess developed knowledge and skill In order to gain a broader view of gender similarity and difference the contributors looked at other types of measures and other characteristics of young women and men Their hope is to contribute to a firmer basis for insuring fairness in tests an objective which is particularly important as the field moves increasingly to new forms of assessment in which there is less experience
