Great Britain. Army Catering Corps,1965 Manual of army catering services 1954 ,1954 Frontline Cookbook
Andrew Robertshaw,Valentine Warner,Royal Logistic Corps Museum,2012-02-29 According to Napoleon an army marches on its stomach and it fights on its stomach too yet have you ever wondered how hundreds of men on the frontline are fed amidst hails of bullets and how kitchens are created in the desert or in the trench lines In 1941 the Army officially created the Army Catering Corps and opened the Army School of Cookery in Aldershot Troops were trained to make meals out of the bare minimum of ingredients to feed a company of men from only a mess tin and cook curries to feed hundreds only yards from the frontline Frontline Cookbook brings together recipes from the Second World War including hand written notes from troops fighting in the Middle East India and all over Europe Many recipes are illustrated with cartoons and drawings on how to assemble the perfect oven and kitchen tools at a moment s notice from nothing This book is the perfect inspiration for those who like to create an amazing meal anywhere anytime from anything From Boiled Beef to Chicken Tikka Janet Macdonald,2014-11-30 Including recipes this book takes a different look at military history but one every bit as relevant as any blood and guts campaign study Britain at War Janet Macdonald author of the acclaimed Feeding Nelson s Navy now turns her attention to food in the British Army over the past two centuries Napoleon s remark an army marches on its stomach has become an over used cliché It is a simple statement and undoubtedly true but like many such simple statements the actuality of what fills that stomach and how it is provided is far more complex The more you think about this subject the more questions come to you What did the British soldier eat and how was it cooked Did it provide a proper diet or were there health problems from vitamin and other deficiencies Did all ranks eat the same way Who organised the whole thing Here then are the answers to those questions with some insights into the personalities who made a difference the unsung heroes of the British military machine A compelling new history of British Army food from the 17th century to the present day Index Magazine Supplying the British Army in the Second World War Janet Macdonald,2020-03-30 During the Second World War how were the multitude of items required by the soldiers in the front line selected ordered and delivered and how were they produced In this the second volume in her detailed scholarly study of the army s logistical system Janet Macdonald describes the necessity for central advanced planning for each expeditionary force as well as those engaged in home defence and the complex organization of personnel who performed these tasks from the government and military command in London to those who distributed the equipment on the battlefield Armies have always required large amounts of material but by the Second World War the numbers of men involved had grown exponentially their equipment had become mechanized and their deployment was world wide Elaborate planning and administration at every level had to ensure that items of all kinds were collected transported and handed out in every theatre of the war The scale of the operation was enormous and it had to be performed to critical timetables and was sometimes threatened by enemy action and it was vital to the army's success
