My Pink Choice Carol Kilpatrick, 2024-12-05 My biggest fear is that it will come back again I heard her say those words and I was not far enough along in this process to have realized that thought on my own She was close to my age and had described a family with children like mine There was desperation in her voice and she blinked back tears as she told of her battle Cancer is a looming enemy Those who have never grappled with the idea of cancer cells multiplying within their bodies have not experienced the suffocating weight of having brought desperation to those they were meant to care for and protect Everyone around the table had a painful story with different details They had lost friends who did not know what to say male family members who walked away any time the word breast was mentioned and relationships that took an adverse turn in the face of hardship I was still working to sort through my own story I had never thought of my cancer coming back But sitting here listening to this woman and understanding how she arrived honestly at this concern I now shared her biggest fear This is a remarkably transparent rare and authentically raw journey of a cancer diagnosis It is an essential all encompassing guide for the battle against cancer and a rare tool for both the patient and family

Gender Is a Choice Grace Alice Mukasa,2018-10-31 Gender Is a Choice is a remarkable book that thoughtfully demystifies gender discrimination It shows the underlying causes of discrimination which lie deep in our cultures Based on the human rights perspective of equality and dignity Ms Mukasa reaffirms that we are all born equal without gender bias or prejudice and we all share a propensity to learn grow and maximize our innate potential to lead meaningful happy lives However societies have views based on cultural norms attitudes and beliefs that lead to unequal gender relations of power As a result many women and girls suffer This highly educational book highlights the key gender concepts and gives them meaning through a practical family portrait at the end Ms Mukasa decisively affirms that despite powerful socialization processes gender injustice can be overcome The key issue to transform is the traditional socialization process The main tool is to create awareness of the embedded negative aspects concerning women s and men s relationships It calls upon men and women to appreciate that the current gender relations of power are unnatural and unacceptable They are man made and can be dismantled using our agency to make the right choices Women s disempowerment can be disrupted and gender justice can be promoted This book is relevant to all people since gender discrimination is universal and has universally negative consequences Gender discrimination must therefore be disrupted everywhere every time by everyone However Ms Mukasa makes her own choice to focus on the African gender context and the audience whose culture she understands best
