Giving Voice to Values

GIVING VOICE TO VALUES: BRIEF INTRODUCTION

Most of us want to bring our “whole selves” to work. Yet, experience and research demonstrate that many of us will encounter values conflicts in our careers, when the way we want to live and the things we want to accomplish seem in conflict with the expectations of our clients, our peers, our bosses and/or our organizations. The Giving Voice to Values curriculum is designed to help individuals learn to recognize, clarify, speak and act on their values when those conflicts arise.

The focus here is POST-decision making. It is not about deciding what the right thing is. Rather it is about how a manager raises these issues in an effective manner; what he/she needs to do and say in order to be heard; and how to try to correct an existing course of action when necessary.

Distinctive features of the Giving Voice to Values Curriculum include:

1. A focus on positive examples of times when folks have found ways to voice, and thereby implement, their values in the workplace;
2. An emphasis on the importance of finding an alignment between one’s individual sense of purpose and that of the organization (which involves self-assessment and focus on individual strengths);
3. The opportunity to construct and practice responses to the most frequently heard reasons and rationalizations for not acting on one’s values;
4. The opportunity to build commitment by providing repeated opportunities for participants to practice delivering their responses and to learn to provide peer feedback and coaching to enhance effectiveness.

Research and interviews reveal that there are many different ways to voice our values: looking for a win/win solution; changing the boss’s mind through persuasion and logic; going over the boss’s head within the organization; building coalitions of like-minded employees; and so on. But the pivotal moment is deciding to speak.

It’s also important to understand that since there are so many different ways to voice our values, we can look for the approach that not only seems most likely to be effective in our particular situation, but also the one that is most comfortable, given our own personal style of communication and personality. Finally, there are things we can do to make it more likely that we will actually voice our values and that we will do so effectively: namely, pre-scripting, practice and coaching.

The point here is that just because we are addressing a question of values and ethics does not mean that we need to preach. Often, the very fact that a situation has an ethical component to it leads us to feel that we must gear ourselves up to be saints or even martyrs; in reality, we often just need to be competent and skillful. We can approach the communication challenge with the same analytical and personal capabilities that we would use in any other situation, whether it is a convincing our professor to give us an extension on our final paper or

Gentile, 2013-08-29 Despite four decades of good faith effort to teach ethics in business schools you'll still find today headlines about egregious excess and scandal It becomes reasonable to ask why these efforts have not been working Business faculty in ethics courses spend a lot of time teaching theories of ethical reasoning and analyzing those big thorny dilemmas triggering what one professor called ethics fatigue But what if faculty stopped focusing on ethical analysis and focused on a new curriculum one that builds a conversation across the core curriculum not only in ethics courses and also provides the teaching aids for a new way of thinking about ethics education This is where Giving Voice to Values GVV comes in the GVV curriculum asks the question What if I were going to act on my values What would I say and do How could I be most effective This book will help faculty across the business curriculum with examples strategies and assistance in applying the GVV approach In addition to an introductory chapter which explains the rationale and strategy behind GVV there are twelve individual chapters by faculty from the major business functional areas and from faculty representing different geographic regions The book is a useful guide for faculty from any business discipline on HOW to use the GVV approach in his or her teaching Giving Voice to Values Jerry Goodstein, Mary Gentile, 2021-06-28

Giving Voice to Values under the leadership of Mary Gentile has fundamentally changed the way business ethics and values driven leadership is taught and discussed in academic and corporate settings worldwide This book shifts attention to the future of Giving Voice to Values GVV and provides thought pieces from practitioners and leading experts in business ethics and the professions on the possibilities for sustaining its growth and success These include the creation of new teaching materials reaching different audiences and expanding the ways in which GVV is making a difference in classrooms and the workplace and acting as a
