Silenced Resistance Joanna Allan, 2019-04-09 Spain s former African colonies Equatorial Guinea and Western Sahara share similar histories Both are under the thumbs of heavy handed postcolonial regimes and are known by human rights organizations as being among the worst places in the world with regard to oppression and lack of civil liberties Yet the resistance movement in one is dominated by women the other by men In this innovative work Joanna Allan demonstrates why we should foreground gender as key for understanding both authoritarian power projection and resistance She brings an ethnographic component to a subject that has often been looked at through the lens of literary studies to examine how concerns for equality and women s rights can be co opted for authoritarian projects She reveals how Moroccan and Equatoguinean regimes in partnership with Western states and corporations conjure a mirage of promoting equality while simultaneously undermining women s rights in a bid to cash in on oil minerals and other natural resources This genderwashing along with historical local indigenous and colonially imposed gender norms mixed with Western misconceptions about African and Arab gender roles plays an integral role in determining the shape and composition of public resistance to authoritarian regimes

Race Rights

Reparations Fernne Brennan, 2017-07-14 This book considers institutional racism as a problem that exists within modern societies Its roots lie with the transatlantic slave trade and slavery and the solution involves ridding society of the problem It is argued here that first there needs to be an acceptance of its existence then developing the tools needed to deal with it and finally to implement those tools so that institutional racism can be permanently removed from society The book has four themes the first considers the nature of institutional racism the second theme looks at instances of institutional racism through matters such as deaths in custody and skin lightening the third considers the concept of reparations and the final area looks at the development of social movements as a way of pushing institutional racism up the political agenda The development of a social movement is part of a social discourse which would for example push mentoring as a form of reparations There is a need for more research on the manifestations of institutional racism and this book is part of that discourse It is argued that the legacy of the slave trade and slavery is continuing and contemporary through the presence of institutional racism in society This problem has not been addressed through legislation and policies devised to combat racial discrimination Institutional racism needs to be understood as being located in the processes and procedures of societal institutions
