Student Exploration: Rock Cycle

Objectives In this activity, students understand geologic time, describe geologic time scale, rock types, magma, metamorphic rocks, rock cycle, sediment, sedimentary rock, and weathering.

Pre-Knowledge Questions (Use these as warm-ups using the class.)

1. What happens to sediment after it gets buried deeper? Is it the process of weathering? And what is weathering? (It's breaking down the surface of something.)
2. How does rock become sediment? (The breaking down of the rock material into tiny bits.)
3. How does sediment become sedimentary rock? (They were brought down by water, they were buried deeper, and they got compacted and happened there and became a new sedimentary.)

They got compacted into that order.

Class Warm-up

Class members all share, describe, and explain their own experiences with other people. They share a story about "being" someone else. Different experiences become stories on the metamorphic rock weathering. The class, over a time of the image.

1. What types of rocks are there? (Sedimentary, metamorphic, and igneous rocks.)
2. Magma is molten (liquid) rock under Earth's surface. Based on the image, how do you think magma becomes sedimentary rocks? (The magma, which is liquid, gets solidified.)
3. How does magma become solid based on the title of the image? (The magma, which is liquid, gets solidified.)

Teaching and Learning Online Franklin S. Allaire, Jennifer E. Killham, 2023-01-01 Science is unique among the disciplines since it is inherently hands on. However, the hands on nature of science instruction also makes it uniquely challenging when teaching in virtual environments. How do we as science teachers deliver high quality experiences to secondary students in an online environment that leads to age grade level appropriate science content knowledge and literacy but also collaborative experiences in the inquiry process and the nature of science? The expansion of online environments for education poses logistical and pedagogical challenges for early childhood and elementary science teachers and early learners. Despite digital media becoming more available and ubiquitous and increases in online spaces for teaching and learning (Killham et al 2014, Wong et al 2018), PreK-12 teachers consistently report feeling underprepared or overwhelmed by online learning environments (Molnar et al 2021, Seaman et al 2018). This is coupled with persistent challenges related to elementary teachers' lack of confidence and low science teaching self-efficacy (Brigido, Borrachero, Bermejo, Gunning, Duran, Duran 2004). Ideal for undergraduate teacher candidates, graduate students, teacher educators, classroom teachers, parents, and administrators, this book addresses why and how teachers use online environments to teach science content and work with elementary students through a research-based foundation.

Rocks and Minerals, 2011 What Are They Thinking? Page Keeley, 2014-04-01 Children are continually developing ideas and explanations about their natural world. Some of these ideas are consistent with the science children are taught; others differ significantly from scientific explanations. Many of these ideas will follow students into adulthood if they remain hidden from the teacher and unresolved. The challenge for teachers is to find ways to elicit these ideas and then use appropriate strategies to move students' learning forward. Page Keeley, author of the bestselling NSTA Press series Uncovering Student Ideas in Science, You don't have to become a mind reader to understand the ideas young students bring to science class. This collection will help you draw out and then recognize what students know or think they know about the natural world. What Are They Thinking? is a compendium of 30 Formative Assessment Probes, columns from NSTA's elementary journal Science and Children. Each chapter provides a sample formative assessment probe, a set of interesting questions that root out commonly held, often mistaken ideas. Geared to elementary students, probe topics range from why you can see the Moon in the daytime to where water goes when it evaporates to what is or isn't a rock. Your students' answers to each probe will help you take a step back and figure out how to guide them from where they are conceptually to where they need to be. Accompanying teacher notes, easy-to-grasp explanations, and advice that tell you how to encourage evidence-based discussion and then monitor students' understanding. A bonus feature: a set of study group questions written especially for this compendium by award-winning author Page Keeley. So forget about acquiring psychic powers. Instead, turn to What Are They Thinking? to transform both your teaching and your students' learning about science.
